

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction	1
Part I. What Does Religion Look Like in the World Today?	21
1 What Is Religion?	25
2 What Is Happening to Religion in the Modern World?	38
Part II. How Do Religions Gain Their Power?	63
3 The Demand for Religion	65
4 Choosing Communities: The Platform Model of Religion	88
5 Ritual and Social Bonding	105
6 Religion and Belief	121
7 Religion, Narrative, and Meaning	148
8 The Evolutionary Origins of Enchantment	175
9 The Temple Society—and Other Business Models	197

Part III. Religion and the Uses of Power	233
10 Religion and Politics	235
11 The Great Religion Gender Gap?	264
12 The Abuse of Religious Power	278
Part IV. Conclusion	297
13 The Past and Future of Religion	299
14 Conclusion	326
Statistical Appendix	343
Notes	365
Bibliography	409
Index	453

Introduction

This participation of all men in suffering weighs heavily on the mind of the Beloved of the Gods.

—from an edict of Indian emperor Ashoka,
third century BCE

The Generosity of the Poor

Why do some very poor people give money to some very rich people? The question was at the forefront of my mind as I talked to a young woman I will call Grace, in Accra, the capital of Ghana, in February 2015. She had come to a room at the Central University College to take part in an economic experiment with my team of researchers. Grace was twenty-four years old, simply but neatly dressed, with a quiet but alert composure. I guessed her to have a reasonable education and to be working as a clerk in a small business or a government office.

I could not have been more wrong. Six days a week Grace walks up and down between the lines of cars that queue at the traffic lights on one of the main roads into Accra. She sells iced water in little plastic sachets stored in a basket above her head. From this she earns the equivalent of a little over a dollar and a half a day. After twelve hours of this debilitating work, inhaling exhaust fumes on a hot and dusty highway six days a week, she goes home to a tiny house she has built in a slum neighborhood with her aunt, with whom she came to the city a few years ago.

The public torture and execution in 1762 of Jean Calas, a French Protestant convicted on trumped-up charges of killing his son to prevent him from converting to Catholicism. The memory of this was still very fresh in Toulouse when Adam Smith began his visit to the city in 1764, a visit during which he began writing The Wealth of Nations.

Credit: Chronicle / Alamy stock photo.

On Sundays, she goes to church. She's an usher, greeting people as they come into the church and directing them to their seats in the pews. She then sings in the choir, and is an assistant in a Sunday school group. She gives money to the church, by paying tithes—the traditional 10 percent of her tiny income—as well as by giving to the collection during services, which brings the total she gives up to around 12 percent. She is aware that the money she gives to the church can't be used for other purposes, like paying for medical treatment for her aunt, who is often sick.

The main beneficiary of her donations and the leader of her church, whom I will call Pastor William, is an energetic, smiling, and charming man who is very rich, and wants everyone to know it. He drives a large Mercedes, and wears a belt with a big round buckle decorated with a dollar sign. He no more needs Grace's money than he needs another impeccably pressed suit. Yet Grace gives him her money, willingly. Why?

The one answer you can't give is that Grace is stupid, or deceived. She knows exactly what she's doing; she's more lucid about her finances than I am about mine. She knows that she could choose to go to another church, or remain in this one and avoid paying her tithes or putting money in the collection box. Yet she stays in this church, and she pays regularly, and always on time.

A more promising answer would be that there's nothing surprising about Grace's generosity because poor and not-so-poor people give money to rich people all the time—indeed, that's the main reason rich people are rich. The people who pay don't usually describe what they are doing as making a donation, though. They're usually aware that when they buy food from Walmart, or renew their Netflix subscription, or buy a Louis Vuitton handbag, or charge their credit card for an Amazon delivery, they're contributing to making a few very rich people even richer than they were before. But whether or not this bothers them (and it might even please them, if the person they're paying is a certain kind of celebrity), it's a by-product of paying for a product or a service. Maybe we should think of what Grace is doing in the same way. Suppose that, instead of giving money to Pastor William because she thinks he needs it or deserves it, she's giving him money because she believes she's getting something in return. What kind of product or service might she be paying for?

Without visualizing in detail the exhausting awfulness of Grace's everyday labor, it may be hard to understand why going to church on Sunday means so much to her. She can wear a clean dress; she can greet people and be greeted respectfully as she shows worshippers to their seats. In Sunday school she can take some responsibility for younger and even more vulnerable people than herself. She can sing with other singers; she can chat to different people from the street hawkers with whom she spends her working days. She has some chance of finding friends—and who knows, maybe one day even a husband, one who is less likely to drink or to beat her than alternative suitors she might find at random in this scary city. She can do all this as part of a community that recognizes and respects her. If going to church costs her an eighth of her income, it may even seem cheap at the price. We, the observers, might wonder by what right the very rich Pastor William asks this very poor woman to pay her tithes. But for Grace that's not the question: if the tithes are what she needs to pay to belong, she will pay.

There's a further twist. If you don't pay your Netflix subscription you will no longer be able to stream; if you don't pay at the checkout in Walmart you can't take your groceries out the door. But even if Grace no longer pays her tithes, she will still be welcome at the church. Only perhaps she may not feel quite so welcome as she did before—the pastor's smile may be replaced by a concerned frown; one of the assistant pastors may ask her whether she's all right. She may wonder whether her trusted position as a Sunday school assistant is secure. The esteem she feels in her community, in such sharp contrast to the aggression and contempt she receives every day in her working environment, depends not only on her coming to church but on her coming there willingly, prepared to make a donation that's big enough to hurt. Both Grace and Pastor William understand this. He, and the community he manages, can make her feel special. They do this all the more effectively because Grace believes that Pastor William stands in a special relationship to God.

Billions of people around the world in the twenty-first century respond to the call of religious leaders by giving time, energy, and money to the movements they lead. Like Grace, they mostly do so lucidly and reflectively, and as a result religious movements have accumulated tremendous power. Sometimes religious leaders go even further: they may ask, literally and not metaphorically, for people's lives.

Icons into Battle

At four o'clock in the morning of February 24, 2022, nearly three thousand Russian battle tanks, accompanied by many thousands more troops in trucks and lightly armored vehicles, began a journey across the border between Russia and Ukraine. Inside the tanks were thousands of young men, many barely more than schoolboys, who had been ordered into battle to defend an idea. It was fundamentally a nationalist rather than a religious idea, but it had been supported by some heavy religious artillery the previous day, in a fiery sermon by Patriarch Kirill of the Russian Orthodox Church.¹ Over the following weeks and months, Patriarch Kirill would redouble his rhetoric in support of the war. He urged soldiers to fight as their patriotic duty, and promised them that "sacrifice in the course of carrying out your military duty washes away all sins."² He also offered them the protection of religious equipment, such as a gilded icon of the Virgin Mary, which he donated in March 2022 to General Viktor Zolotov, director of the Russian National Guard, and of which Zolotov in his acceptance speech said "this icon will protect the Russian army and accelerate our victory."³

The young men in the Russian tanks certainly needed protection. They had been told they would be met with welcome smiles and posies of flowers, but in fact they were met with antitank missiles, fired by men of their own age. In the days and weeks to follow, priests of the Ukrainian Orthodox and Catholic Churches would use prayer and biblical exhortation to stiffen their countrymen's will to resist. And among the outpouring of support and offers of military and humanitarian supplies, many thousands of rosaries have been manufactured and delivered to Ukraine, to raise the morale of both civilian refugees and frontline troops.⁴

Icons and rosaries are just two of an immense variety of religious technologies that have been deployed throughout the ages to stiffen the resolve of young men ordered by their elders into combat: a recent study in the violent eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo reported forty-six different objects, potions, and rituals used by armed groups.⁵ Religions also deal centrally with the aftermath of war—the edict of Emperor Ashoka that I quoted at the beginning was carved on several rock surfaces in India to express his remorse at the brutal slaughter he had inflicted during the conquest of Kalinga, remorse that would lead him later to become a major patron of Buddhism. The text is in some ways shocking in its narcissism, giving as much prominence to the troubled emotions of the emperor as to the violence he had unleashed. But it also illustrates one of the most poignant features of the great world religions. Their ambition, and an important part of their appeal, lies precisely in their seeking to find some meaning in the vast suffering in the world, and some call to account even of the powerful, though religious leaders have so often contributed to the suffering by their calls to violent sacrifice.

Warfare is only one of the many theaters of religious persuasion. From battlefield to ballot box, from boardroom to bedroom, religious movements enjoy immense power in the world today. This power arises mainly because the leaders of these movements have persuaded their members to grant it to them—most religious people, including Grace in Accra and many millions like her, are enthusiasts, not prisoners. Their relationship with their religious leaders is mostly voluntary (often much more so than their relationship with their political and military leaders). There's a real problem in some Muslim-majority countries where the fact that the law prescribes the death penalty for apostasy or blasphemy creates a climate of fear for those who wish to renounce Islam publicly or even to leave it quietly.⁶ But there are many nominal Muslims who are only minimally observant if at all, and the enthusiasm of the majority cannot be attributed to coercion. Still, the bad news is that, since most of the world's religious people are not prisoners, it's difficult to hold a reasoned discussion about how to make the leaders of their movements accountable, to ensure this power is not abused—as it has certainly been abused on the battlefields of Eastern Europe, and in many other places too.

This book is about how the world's religions have gained such power, what they do with it, and how abuses of this power can be constrained.

When we see politicians instrumentalize religion as they so often do, it's easy to conclude that the most important source of religious power is political influence. It's true that political leaders have often granted vast powers to religious movements—by establishing them as official religions, by granting them subsidies and tax breaks, or by giving them legal power to punish people who don't accept their authority. But this doesn't explain why political leaders—who as a rule don't like giving power to anybody—should want to grant it to the leaders of religion. The truth is that they do so because religious movements have gained their power independently, through persuading people like Grace to join them. Political leaders are envious of the legitimacy that comes with it. The question that will occupy us here is how religious movements gain that power.

A natural way of thinking about this is that religions flourish because they preach a particularly moving spiritual message, a narrative that speaks to important human needs. While convincing as far as it goes, this doesn't explain why some messages succeed in moving their hearers more than others do. After all, most of the spiritual movements that were ever founded have disappeared without trace. What makes the best religious messages so moving, then—so enchanting, in the best sense of that multifaceted word, whose several meanings we'll return to unpack later in the book? There's a surprising answer to this question: it's economics. What exactly does that mean?

Religious movements may preach in poetry, but for their work to be effective they must minister in prose. They must be the fruit of system, not just of serendipity—and the more modern the movement, the more important is the system. The messages religious movements send to their members and potential members may be practical or uplifting, informative or transfiguring. But it's not their content alone that gives them their power. The organizations themselves that make up these movements—churches, mosques, madrassas, synagogues, temples, prayer groups, ashrams, monasteries, meeting houses—must engage in what the nineteenth-century economist Alfred Marshall called “the ordinary business of life.”⁷ They recruit, raise funds, disburse budgets, manage premises, organize transport, motivate employees and volunteers, and get their message out. They do this while being keenly aware that they compete—for funds, loyalty, energy, and attention—with other religious organizations, potentially no less inspiring than they are, as well as with secular rivals and the pull of lassitude, indifference, skepticism, or outright hostility. Without economic resources behind them, the most beautifully crafted messages will struggle to gain a hearing in the cacophony of life. The velvet glove of enchantment clothes an iron fist of organization.

Saying that religions compete does not imply they are motivated by greed or profit (though they might be), any more than a restaurant owner, winemaker, theater director, or manager of a biotech or software start-up must be motivated by greed or profit. They may be driven by passion or pragmatism, but competing is what they must do to command the necessary economic and human resources to survive and flourish.

Religions, in short, are businesses. Like most businesses, they are many other things as well—they're communities, objects of inspiration or anxiety to observers from outside, cradles of ambition and frustration to their recruits, theaters of fulfilment or despair to those who invest their lives or their savings within them. But they are legitimate businesses—a fact that should give pause to some of their detractors, but also empower those (their supporters as well as their critics) who believe they should be accountable to society as other businesses are. And they need to be understood in terms of their organization as well as in terms of the mission they inherit from their founders. A convincing account of the success of businesses like Microsoft or Apple can't stop with charming stories of their teenage founders coding obsessively in their parents' garages. It needs to understand the current structure of these businesses, their logistics, and their corporate culture. A convincing account of the success of religious movements requires no less comprehensive an investigation.

The history of religious movements has focused overwhelmingly, and for good reason, on the personalities of their founders and the poetry in the messages they communicate. This book is about the underlying prose, which shapes what it is possible for others to hear. It has made all the difference between a message that may move a few hearers before fading into oblivion and one that continues to thunder down the centuries. Pastor William is an intriguing man, but we're going to see much more of Grace and her friends, as well as their counterparts in Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and the world's other religions, than we see of him in the pages to come.

Religion and Economics—an Age-Old Partnership

It may seem strange that the power of an other-worldly message to move multitudes could be shaped by such a worldly constraint as economic competition, but to Scottish philosopher and economist Adam Smith in the eighteenth century it was only common sense. Theologians in the Church of England were much preoccupied with the growth in popularity of the so-called New Dissenters, and particularly the Methodists led by John Wesley. In terms reminiscent of the way some populist politicians are discussed in broadsheet newspapers and on digital media today, Methodist preachers were accused of “bewitching” their listeners, making “people go mad,” and persuading them that the parsons of the established Church were “blind guides and false prophets.”⁸ But an Irish minister may have revealed more than he meant to when he set about the Methodist preacher John Smythe with a club, exclaiming “how dare you go about preaching, setting the whole neighborhood out of their senses, and thinning my congregation.”⁹

For Adam Smith this was the whole point: what was going on was competition to attract an audience. He thought the reason the Methodists were good at it was that they had stronger incentives. As Smith wrote in book 5 of The Wealth of Nations, Methodists faced a different set of economic rewards than the parsons of the Church of England. Parsons typically enjoyed a comfortable salary independently of how well they preached. But a Methodist minister who could not summon an enthusiastic congregation would not earn a living. As Smith put it with gentle sarcasm: “The clergy of an established and well-endowed religion frequently become men of learning and elegance, who possess all the virtues of gentlemen.” But they were much less interested in, and therefore much less good at, filling the pews.¹⁰

Smith was interested in how economic incentives might shape not just the quality but also the content of the message delivered by churches. This was literally a matter of life and death. Europe in Smith's time still bore the scars of the violent wars of religion that had convulsed the continent for over a century leading up to the end of the Thirty Years' War. There were still periodic outbursts of religiously fueled violence, as well as persistent repression of religious minorities such as the Protestant Huguenots in France.¹¹ Smith began writing The Wealth of Nations in 1764, during a long visit to my home city of Toulouse, in southwest France. Toulouse had been wracked during the previous two years by recriminations over the torture and execution of Jean Calas, a Protestant, on the false charge of killing his son. The son had committed suicide, but it was alleged that Calas had murdered him to stop him from converting to Catholicism. The case had been taken up by the philosopher Voltaire, who made it a centerpiece of his attacks on the intolerance of the Catholic Church.¹² Amid the swirling controversies about religion, violence, and persecution, Smith must have reflected very hard about why he was living in such religiously turbulent times.¹³

Voltaire often wrote as though he thought religion was essentially intolerant, and many partisans of one religion would argue that the intolerance they perceived in rival religions was part of their intrinsic nature. Smith strongly disagreed. Whether religions preached a tolerant or an intolerant message, he wrote, was not the result of some quality inherent in religion, but the result of the incentives religious leaders faced. Just as in other fields of life competition was good and monopoly was bad for ordinary people, he argued that when many religions competed with one another on an equal basis, they would be obliged to preach a more benevolent message.¹⁴ It's clear Smith meant rivalry between any movements that had the freedom to shape their own message, including rival Protestant churches in the same town. Only if the number of religions in a society were limited to a very few, he claimed, would their leaders be able to preach violence and discord. And this in turn was likely to happen only if political leaders granted protection to some religious movements over others.

So why would political leaders want to do this? What benefit could they gain from granting power to religious movements? Smith thought they might, for example, offer the protection of the state to one or a small number of privileged faiths, sheltering them from competition in return for legitimation of the state's political leaders by the religion's ideological leaders.¹⁵ He developed this idea into a theory of the natural life cycle of religious movements: new movements would be energetic and dynamic, and the successful ones would attract the envy of political leaders, who would offer them privileges and protection in return for their ideological support. Politicians like nothing better than to have priests, pastors, rabbis, or imams preaching to attentive congregations on their behalf. But Smith warned that protection would weaken religious leaders' incentives to listen to their members, so they would eventually become unable to compete effectively against even newer religious movements that challenged them in turn.

Smith's point was not that the content of the message preached by religious leaders didn't matter—far from it. Nor was he suggesting that religious leaders were interested only in economic gain. His point was rather that their teachings responded to the economic and political circumstances in which the leaders of the various movements found themselves. There was no point in urging the churches to change their message if that was the one it was in their interest to deliver. And, as poor Jean Calas discovered to his cost, a church that was entitled by law to break him and kill him if he disagreed with its teachings had no incentive to do the hard work necessary to make those teachings more persuasive.

In the two and a half centuries since Smith wrote, we have learned much more than he knew about both economics and religion, and of course our societies have changed almost beyond recognition, so we are no longer studying the same world. Almost . . . but not entirely. We'll see that Smith's conclusions are often inaccurate to describe today's world, but his way of thinking about the problems of his time remains astonishingly relevant even in the twenty-first century.

Religion today is big business—a study published in 2016 estimated that faith-based organizations in the United States received revenues equal to 378 billion US dollars. That's an enormous inflow of resources, greater than the revenues in the same year of Apple and Microsoft combined, and greater than 2 percent of total personal income in the United States.¹⁶ It's 60 percent of the revenues of the media and entertainment industries—film, gaming, books, music, the lot.¹⁷ It's half of what all the restaurants in America earned together.¹⁸ That doesn't even count the time, energy, and contributions in kind made by members of faith-based organizations. It's impossible to get comparable international figures, so we can only conjecture what may be happening elsewhere. But there are quite a few countries, particularly in Africa (Ghana, Nigeria, Kenya, Zimbabwe, and South Africa, for instance) and Latin America (Brazil, Guatemala, El Salvador, and Honduras, for instance), where there is a strong Pentecostal presence and where it's reasonable to think that at least one adult in ten is paying tithes (10 percent of their income). If another two adults in ten are paying 5 percent of their income, then even if no one else is paying anything, this would yield total revenues of faith-based organizations of similar importance relative to the size of their economies.

Religion and Politics

Religion is also big politics, just as Smith predicted. Political leaders around the world, in countries from Azerbaijan and Brazil to Yemen and Zimbabwe, have sought legitimacy for their regimes from religious authorities.¹⁹ The more theocratic among them justify their repression of dissent by claiming that political opposition is tantamount to rebellion against the Almighty, as in the case of the Iranian rapper executed in December 2022 for “waging war against God,” which raises the question why the Almighty should be so much in need of human defense.²⁰ The government of Israel that took office in December 2022 has a finance minister who has called for the restoration of the Torah justice system as “in the days of King David.”²¹ Russian president Vladimir Putin has extolled the virtues of the Russian Orthodox Church, and even referred to the destiny of Russian Orthodoxy in support of his 2022 invasion of Ukraine. As we saw earlier, the leadership of the Russian Orthodox Church continued to support the invasion enthusiastically even as the human costs of that invasion became more visible.²² President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has made his personal religiosity a key component of his political strategy for Turkey since his time as mayor of Istanbul in the 1990s, turning initiatives like the reinstatement of the Hagia Sophia as a mosque into major political statements.²³ And the initiative does not come only or even mainly from leaders with a previous track record of religious conviction. Whether it's Donald Trump discovering the attractions of praying with evangelical pastors, Narendra Modi worshipping at Hindu temples, Xi Jinping sponsoring the reconstruction of Buddhist temples, or Binyamin Netanyahu presiding over a religious transformation of educational curricula in Israel, leaders who were never known for their piety have shown growing enthusiasm for cultivating their inner devotee.²⁴ Perhaps the weight of office provokes greater humility before the mysteries of the spiritual life. Then again, perhaps not.

As we'll see in later chapters, there are many reasons why politicians turn to religion. Sometimes it's as simple as the fact that many citizens listen to religious leaders in deciding whether and how to cast their vote—there's convincing evidence, for instance, that church attendance has a positive causal impact on political turnout.²⁵ Sometimes it's a way for political leaders to claim to be more honest or more morally righteous than they would otherwise appear. It can be more subtle: religious leaders often have a talent for articulating narratives that make sense of sacrifice and loss, predicaments that politicians usually struggle to explain to their citizens, but which they may hope to legitimate by expressing them in religious language.

Whatever the motivation for the transaction, when religion and politics are entwined, the stakes are high. In return for their explicit or implicit support, religious organizations favored by politicians can be granted great privileges. The Christian Church, for example, acquired enormous material resources after its political establishment in Europe in the Middle Ages; it's estimated that by the year 750 CE the Church owned around one-third of all the agricultural land in western Europe.²⁶ Much of this accumulation came in the form of donations and bequests from wealthy patrons who believed that their fate after death might be influenced by the piety to which these donations bore witness. Similar processes have been documented over the same centuries for Hindu and Buddhist temples across Asia and for mosques throughout the Islamic world.

The Catholic Church lost most of those resources again, massively, after the Protestant Reformation. This happened not only through the Dissolution of the Monasteries in England, spearheaded by Henry VIII's minister Thomas Cromwell, but throughout Europe where the Reformation spread, as recent research has shown.²⁷ But even churches that are not established often enjoy great material privileges even today. Though they take money from members of the public, they typically pay no tax. In many countries they publish no accounts (unlike secular charities), and are partly exempt from the laws that govern the employment and other practices of firms.²⁸ They are often enabled (and sometimes encouraged) to use the law against members of the public who oppose them, whether these are members of rival religions or simply ordinary citizens who wish to live their lives in ways of which other people disapprove. When this happens, it's tempting to think that religious organizations are powerful because they enjoy these privileges; there is some truth in that. More importantly, though, they enjoy these privileges because they are independently powerful. And they are powerful, by and large, because they have persuaded their members to make them so.

It follows that privileges cannot make religious organizations durably powerful unless they've already won this power through gaining committed followers. We see this in the repeated failure of political leaders to undercut the legitimacy of some religious organizations by granting privileges to rivals that the political leaders prefer, but that have not passed the basic test of developing a following of their own. As I write, the French government is seeking to combat Islamic radicalism by launching a "moderate" Islamic Council, having apparently learned nothing from the failure of a previous attempt to do the same nearly two decades earlier.²⁹ The Chinese government has for years supported an "official" Chinese Catholic Church, as well as official Protestant and Muslim organizations, but none of these appear to enjoy as much popular support as the unofficial organizations in these traditions. For similar reasons, there are signs that the increasing political influence of evangelical Christian organizations over the Republican Party in the United States is leading many Americans to turn away from evangelical churches, attending church less often even if they may still identify as evangelical.³⁰ As Adam Smith had already warned, political power may be a poisoned chalice that churches come to regret.

Power can also be damaging to religion in another way. In recent years, thanks to investigations by many individual reporters and media outlets, and brave decisions to break silence on the part of victims, we have come to understand the massive scale of physical, psychological, and sexual abuse perpetrated by many people elevated to positions of trust within religious movements. This abuse is continuing to come to light, and in organizations of all religious traditions and denominations. Abuse can occur in all social environments, secular as well as religious, but it's most common in those that grant leaders unchecked authority over vulnerable people. The veneration accorded to charismatic religious leaders makes it particularly hard for their victims to protect themselves, or even sometimes fully to believe what is happening to them, to call abuse by its proper name. They fear, often rightly, that even if they can believe their own senses they may not be believed by others. When the truth eventually emerges it can discredit not only the individual abusers but the whole culture that enabled and protected them. Though it may be painful to admit it, religious organizations have everything to gain from avoiding the accumulation of too much unchecked power over their members.

The Questions This Book Will Answer

What this book will show is both simple and novel. Religious movements are a special kind of business—they are platforms. Platforms are organizations that facilitate relationships that could not form, or could not function as effectively, in the platforms' absence. Platforms reward those who create and manage them by appropriating some of the benefits those relationships make possible.

In the twenty-first century the word “platforms” conjures up the digital universe of search engines, social media, and smartphone applications for everything from dining to dating to decorating. Their ubiquity online blinds us to the fact that platforms using predigital technology—the voice; the handshake; the song; the dance; the drinking cup; the knife, the fork, and the spoon—have been around since the dawn of history. They have included the matchmaker who introduced couples; the interpreter who united linguistic strangers; the market trader who helped farmers and artisans find buyers; the merchant adventurer whose wanderings brought silks, spices, and the plague to people who had never traveled away from their birthplace; as well as the temple, the church, the mosque, and the synagogue that built communities. But community building is not magic—it's the fruit of hard work and organization as well as inspiration, and religious movements have found ways to marry hard work with thoughtful strategy to create enchantment. This book will recount how it has been done, from prehistory to the twenty-first century. It will show that as religious movements have modernized, they have moved the platform component of their operations to center stage. In the process we shall see how to bring accountability to the exercise of the immense power these religious movements have built.

The book will address difficult questions that many standard accounts of religion struggle to answer. These questions are of three main kinds. First, there are the intimately personal questions: What are the needs in individual human beings to which religious movements speak? Is religiosity a distinct psychological trait, or is it a bundle of diverse traits that have little in common? How can religion claim to bring order to the unweeded garden of human perceptions and desires? How can it give so many people a sense of purpose in their lives that secular institutions often struggle to articulate? If religion really does speak to universal human needs and longings, why has it been claimed that women are on average more religious than men? And why is religion booming in many parts of the world when observers in Europe and North America are convinced it's in terminal decline?

The second type of question the book will address is organizational. Why do religious movements take so many different forms, from tiny cults to vast international organizations? What are the most important differences between religious platforms and secular ones? How does technological innovation, from cave painting to printing to artificial intelligence, affect the intensity of rivalry between religious movements? When is such rivalry peaceful and when does it become angry, even violent? Why do religious movements so often clash over abstruse points of theology or ritual that are hard for most of their members to understand, let alone decide? When do religious movements flourish and grow, when do they splinter, when do they die? Can a large, centralized movement like the Catholic Church survive in the modern world, or is it destined to break up? How do movements as different as Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Protestant Christianity maintain fidelity to their practices and rituals in the absence of centralized authorities to enforce orthodoxy?

The third type of question is political, in the broadest sense of the word: these are questions about power, its use and its abuse. Why have movements that affirm moral values seen an epidemic of sexual abuse? Why do political leaders so often claim religious support for war and repression? When are religious hostility and religious violence directed at perceived heretics within religious movements, and when are they directed at members of different movements? And, finally, can authoritarian religious messages survive in a world of increasing education, falling fertility, and female emancipation? Or will religion provide the secret sauce for a successful authoritarian backlash against the hard-won gains of the last two centuries in equality, democracy, and freedom for minorities?

The platform model of religious movements casts new light on all these questions and more. These features of religion are the fruit of countless commitments made by individuals to the religious platforms that invite them to join. They owe their form to competition between those platforms to attract members and resources, competition that will shape what is possible for religious movements and their political backers in the coming century.

Outline of the Book

Part I will begin by defining what religion is and describing what religion looks like in the world today. It will show that, despite what many have claimed, religion is not in decline; it is in many ways more powerful than it has ever been.

Part II will then look at what religious power consists in, and where it comes from. The most successful religious organizations have developed their competitive strategies over thousands of years, and have continued refining them in recent decades. They're successful because they speak more convincingly than many of their secular rivals to needs shared by most, though not necessarily all, human beings. These include both material and spiritual needs, including the need for a sense of community and for a compelling shared narrative of our lives and our place in the universe. The secular institutions of twenty-first-century democratic industrial capitalism have furnished our lives abundantly with appliances and activities, but citizens of the modern world are still often in search of ways to furnish them with meaning. Some find that meaning without any help from religion, but many find it more fully in religion than anywhere else. The genius of religious movements has been to provide meaning through the creation of platforms—communities that create shared meaning not as an abstract idea, as in a philosophy class, but as the natural product of shared experiences. These may be lived in a group or lived alone, but they are interpreted through a language and a symbolism that make sense only in the light of the group. It is through the group that discipline can paradoxically create and nourish enchantment. The most successful religious movements today are those that have been developing and adapting the platform model for the demands of the twenty-first century.

Part III will look at how religious organizations use their power—politically, socially, economically, psychologically, sometimes to good ends and sometimes to bad ones. Mostly we shall try simply to understand how they do so, without judgment. However, in part IV we'll look to the future, and see whether our understanding of the sources and uses of religious power can suggest ways to manage that power for the good of everyone, the religious and the nonreligious alike.

Anyone who cares about how power is exercised in the modern world should care about why religions have so much of that power. So should anyone who cares about the beauty and poetry of religious messages. Those messages have reached us only because of the hard work and strategic thinking of the entrepreneurs and their successors who found ways to convey them. We may all, to varying degrees, have within us the potential to be moved by the mysteries of existence, whatever explanations of those mysteries we may choose to believe. And we should be endlessly curious about the processes by which religious leadership, like the poet's pen in the words of Shakespeare, "turns to shapes the forms of things unknown, and gives to airy nothing a local habitation and a name."³¹

INDEX

Page numbers in italics indicate figures and tables.

- Abe, Shinzo: assassination of, 235, 238;
grandfather's role in bringing Unification Church to Japan, 237
- Abi Talib, Ali bin, murder of, 150
- abortion: Ireland, 55; Japan, 237; Poland, 58;
religious disputes, 130
- Abrahamic religions, 195, 233
- abuse of religious power: cultures of secrecy, 287–89; cultures of silence, 287–89;
emotion in religion, 292; grooming network of camps, 283–86; guidelines for reducing risk of, 294–95; John Smyth and the Iwerne camps, 278, 280–87; morality and sinfulness emphasis, 292; recruitment question, 292–93; structural characteristics of organizations, 291–93; vulnerability and power, 289–94. See also sexual abuse
- Accidental Gods* (Della Subin), 241–42
- accountability: advantages of formal, 291;
external, for reducing abuse risk, 294, 295
- Acland, Henry, Ruskin on Christian faith in letter to, 125
- Adler, Alfred, theory of “inferiority complex”, 157
- adolescents, study of personal religiosity and depression, 101
- Adrian II (Pope), 337
- advertisers, platforms charging, 97
- Advice to Married Couples* (Plutarch), 264
- Africa, 46, 49; importance of religion, 359;
importance of religion in lives, 51; local and folk religions, 50; march of global Islam, 40; Muslims and Christians in, 49; Pentecostal presence, 12; religion in, 28; religious proportions, 345, 346; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350
- ‘African’ Swahili, ‘Arabo-Swahili’ of Wahabi vs., 214
- “African Traditional Thought and Western Science” (Horton), 175
- Agarwal, Bina, conceptions of role of women, 397n23
- agency: balancing costs and benefits of alternatives, 71; religious choice and, 74–82
- Ager, Philipp, on religious participation by American communities with agricultural risk, 76
- agnostics, 28, 48, 322, 344–47, 406n14
- agreement with rebels, oil pipeline protection, 394n38
- agriculture, climate change, 195
- ahimsa, Hindu doctrine of non-violence, 170, 254
- Ahmed, Ishaq, case of foreign fighter, 269
- Akhenaten, unusual figure of, 32
- Albigensian Crusade, 336
- Alexander the Great, divine status of, 243, 393n24
- Allah: Quran on, 190; trust in, 190
- al-Malik, ‘Abd, cult of Temple Rock, 223
- America, Putnam and Campbell on religious denominations in, 259

- American evangelicals, community and personal relationship with God, 101
- American Folklore Society, 381n20
- Americans, Hout and Fischer on religious beliefs of, 260
- Americas, Christianity concentration in, 47
- Amir Kabir University, protest against hijab and Islamic Republic, 327
- Amish, 222
- Anabaptist Rebellion (1534), 172
- Anabaptists, 134, 222
- ancestors: invisible spirits and, 25, 27–30; survival in Upper Paleolithic conditions, 189
- ancient polytheisms, Galoppin and Bonnet on, 50
- Andersen, Lars Harhoff, on names of saints and biblical figures, 311
- Anglican clergy, Earnshaw, 44
- animal drawings, Salon Noir, Grotte de Niaux (France), 300, 305
- anthropologists, 30, 35, 37, 56, 60, 65, 69, 74, 85, 94, 101, 108–11, 116, 143–45, 160–61, 163, 178–88, 192–93, 214, 243, 273, 316, 364
- Aphrodite, global god, 50
- Apocalypse of Saint Peter, Gnostic text, 192–93
- Apollo, god, 82
- Apollonius of Tyana, 156
- Appadurai, Arjun, on Temple Society, 200, 201
- Apple, 8, 12
- Aquinas, St. Thomas, on God and sacraments, 377n9
- ‘Arabo-Swahili’ of Wahabi, ‘African’ Swahili vs., 214
- Arango, Andres (Father), on correct ritual performance and, 110–11, 377n9
- architecture: contrasting Catholic and Protestant contributions to, 310–11; religious structures, 305
- Arian controversy, 132, 379n23
- Aringawuk, recovery of body of, 384n65
- Aristide, President, Haiti, 90
- Aristotle, atomism and, 313
- Armenia, importance of religion, 359
- artificial intelligence (AI), recent advances in, 329
- artistic institutions, abuse in, 282
- Ashoka (Emperor), 1, 6
- ashrams, 7
- Asia, 46, 49; importance of religion in lives, 51; Islam concentration in, 47–48; local and folk religions, 49, 50; religion in, 28; religious proportions, 345; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350; very low religiosity state of East, 352, 352
- Askew, Anne, torture and death of, 125
- Assemblies of God: churches in Ghana, 154; network in Accra, Ghana, 77; organization of, 210
- astrologers, aiding kings of ancient China, 246
- astrology, 81, 384n34
- Aten, cult of, 32
- atheists, 28, 48, 322, 344–47, 406n14
- atomism: dying out in China, 314; idea of, 313–15, 317; philosophy of, 313
- atoms, 313
- Atran, Scott, on “minimally counterintuitive” narratives, 160
- attendance at religious services, religious groups and reported, 355, 356
- Augustine of Hippo, 32, 81, 172, 374n35, 384n68, 396n5
- Aumann, Robert, theorem on rational decision-making, 139–41, 146
- Auriol, Emmanuelle: on central religious authority in Islam, 248; on Pentecostalism in Ghana, 77
- authoritarianism, religion and, 338–41
- authoritarian religious messages, survival of, 335
- Axial Age, 31, 169, 195; arrival of religion, 32; doctrines of, 32–33
- Azerbaijan, 12
- Aztec, Maya, and Inca societies of America, 195
- Azzi, Corry, analyzing religious decisions, 70

- Bainbridge, William: analyzing religious decisions, 70; on capacity of religion to innovate, 264; on secularizing processes in modern societies, 362
- Balilla (Italian Fascist youth organization), competition of Church and, 70
- Ball, Matthew, The Metaverse, 303–4
- Bamboo Annals*, constellation of Vermilion Bird, 246
- Bangladesh, importance of religion, 359
- banker's tombstone, epigram on, 88
- baptism: religious beliefs and, 130–31; ritual of, 110–11
- Baptism through Incision* (José de Arrese), 130
- Barna Group, 43
- Barro, Robert: on beatification and canonization in Catholic Church, 222–23; on personal religiosity, 363–64; on political support for religion, 258; on religious beliefs and economic growth, 190
- Basavanna: on crookedness of our Lord's men, 256; poem to Siva, 235
- Bayesians, 144, 146, 380n49
- Bayes' rule, decision-makers and, 141–43
- Bayezid II, edict banning printing, 249
- Bénabou, Roland, on measures of personal religiosity, 311
- Beardeley, Aubrey, illustration of Wilde's Salome, 279
- Beck, Hans, on localism and communal experience, 370–71n29
- Becker, Ernest, religiosity in response to fear of death, 384n62
- Becker, Sascha: on anti-Semitic violence in Europe after Reformation, 254; on income and church attendance, 364
- belief in God, 46; religious groups and reported, 355, 356
- believers, skeptics and, 29–30
- Benedict, Ruth, contrasting “Dionysian” and “Apollonian” rituals, 116
- Benedict XVI (Pope): on “Catholic civil war”, 337; papal retirement, 338; on response to abuse accusations, 281–82
- Bentzen, Jeanet: on earthquake experiences and praying, 76; on historic societies and hierarchies of power, 243–44; on names of saints and biblical figures, 311; on vulnerability to losses and religious demand, 77
- Berger, Peter: analyzing religious decisions, 70; theory of “plausibility structures”, 402n11
- Berman, Eli, analyzing religious decisions, 70
- Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), India's, 59
- Bible, 211, 212; Cain and Abel, 150; distribution of, 309; printing and, 307–8
- Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, 229; family succession of Franklin Graham, 203–4
- Birth of Tragedy, The* (Nietzsche), 116
- Black Lives Matter protests, political posts of, 261
- Blake, William, socialism of, 173
- blasphemy laws, 135
- Blaydes, Lisa, on life expectancy of Christian and Muslim rulers, 249
- Bleeding for Jesus* (Graystone), 398n1
- Blind Watchmaker, The* (Dawkins), 185
- blood of Christ, communion wine and, 140–41
- Bolivian Amazon, Tsimane forager-farmers of, 94–95
- Bonnet, Corinne, on ancient polytheisms, 50
- Booker, Christopher: defeating the monster” stories, 166; The Seven Basic Plots, 156
- Book of Mormon*, 211; distribution of, 309
- Book of the Dead, The, 26
- Botticini, Maristella, on economic incentives by diaspora, 254
- Boyd, Brian, On the Origin of Stories, 162
- Boyd, Robert, on content of our beliefs, 144
- Boyer, Pascal, on “minimally counterintuitive” narratives, 160, 180, 184
- Boyle, Robert, on irreligious tone of Lucretius' poem, 314
- Boy Scouts, abuse at, 282
- Bracciolini, Poggio, 403n36
- brain, shaping awareness, 29

- brain chemistry, mind-altering molecules and, 305–6
- Brand Luther* (Pettegree), 227
- Brazil, 12; church members investing resources in community, 78; importance of religion, 359
- Brazilian Institute for Catholic Marketing, 229
- Breckenridge, Carol Appadurai, on Temple Society, 200, 201
- Brennan, Geoffrey, on economy of esteem, 100
- Brentano, Clemens, folktales, 155
- Breslawski, Jori, on state support of religions, 258
- Briggs, Robin: on belief in reality of witchcraft, 138; on history of witchcraft trials, 251–52
- Britain, crisis of unbelief, 43
- British Horror Story* (Netflix documentary), 293
- Broad Supernatural Punishment (BSP), 386n14
- Brothers Grimm, folktales, 155
- Brown, Erica, on abuse in Jewish communities, 290–91
- Brown, Peter: Christian cult of saints
transgressing Roman taboos, 170–71;
Christians in late Roman period, 31–32; on Christian violence against non-Christians, 255; on “micro-Christendoms”, 208, 336;
on religious conflict of fourth century,
251; on scale of religious violence, 250
- brutality: violent religious extremism, 268–69
- Bryan, Gharad, evaluating a Protestant
Christian education program, 230
- Buddha: compassionate, 138; stories of, 156
- Buddha Gautama, 138
- Buddha Maitreya, 138
- Buddha statues, 98; asymmetry in faces, 328–29
- Buddhism, 6, 9, 80; absence of doctrine, 212; converting villagers to, 170, 384n63;
emergence of, 195; fidelity of, 17; as main brand, 59; narratives, 170; operation of temples, 201; providing education and health services, 75; rivalry, 137; spirits of, 33; Zen, 111
- Buddhist, robots in rituals, 111
- Buddhist countries, 46
- Buddhist monks, spiritual authority of mahanayakas (patriarchs), 257
- Buddhist organizations, sexual abuse in, 282
- Buddhist temples, 14; collective space for groups, 217; competition for revenue, 98;
Xi reconstructing, 13
- Buddhist traditions, Hindus adopting practices of, 74
- Burleigh, Michael, on competition between religious and secular entertainment, 70
- Calas, Jean: church entitled by law to kill, 11; public torture and execution of, 2, 10;
suicide of son, 10
- Calvinism/Calvinists, 134, 222
- Cameroon, 38–40; Reme, 121, 123; view of Bamum mosque in, 39
- Campbell, David, on religious denominations in America, 259
- Campbell, Joseph: comparative mythology,
156, 381–82n20; criticisms of, 156, 381–82n20;
“defeating the monster” stories, 166; The Hero with a Thousand Faces, 156
- Camus, Renaud, on “great replacement” theory, 42
- Canada, importance of religion, 46
- “canals without water”, hypothesis of world of thieves and charlatans, 194
- Capgras delusion, 385n10
- Capitulare de villis*, principles of management, 228
- Carolingian dynasty, van Rhijn on, 225–26
- Carolingian manuscripts, communication of, 228
- Carr, Sister Frances, death of, 175
- Carvalho, Jean-Paul, on identity markers for integration in community, 74
- cash payment offer, Malawi experiment of HIV/STD testing and, 72
- castes, India, 215, 264, 266
- Catechism of the Catholic Church, The, 376n8
- Cathar movement, France, 248

- Cathars, 307; repression of, 249
- Catholic Church: authority of Pope, 207;
Barro and McCleary on beatification and canonization in, 222–23; beatification of Juan Barrera Mendez, 239; centralized power of, 248; as confederation of platforms, 208; controversial doctrinal issues, 337; Franco and, 53–54; future of, 335–38; Haiti, 90; homosexuality among clergy, 293; indigenous Maya population, 238–39; influential figures suspicious of printing, 311; intolerance of, 10; loss of resources, 14; Miracle and Morality plays, 69; papal succession, 338; Poland, 57; prevalence of priestly abusers in, 287, 400n22; printing and Protestant movements escaping control of, 307; printing in Europe, 250; on prison for priests, 53–54, 371n37; prohibition of clerical marriage, 340; rivalry between Protestantism and, 134; schisms of, 336; sexual abuse in, 336; structure of, 207–9; survival in modern world, 17; survival of, 335; suspicion of Vodou, 90; traditions and emigration of Catholics to United States, 109; wealth for growth and operation, 200–201
- Catholic Europe, religiosity in, 350, 351
- Catholicism, 2, 10; architecture in Europe, 310; combining true and false elements, 192; competition between Protestantism and, 222–23; concept of martyrdom, 239; conversion between Protestantism and, 254; cultural, 54, 371n40; Ireland, 55; Levy on conversion to, 128; Puritans of Elizabethan England on, 136–37
- Catholics: conflict with Protestants in France, 123; transubstantiation belief of, 124–25
- Catholics and Protestants, intergroup violence of, 255
- Catholic shrine, Saint Bernadette of Lourdes, 31
- Catto, Rebecca, on decline of religious institutions, 363
- caves, sites of shamanistic rituals, 305, 402n18
- celibacy, community survival and, 175–78
- census data, religious affiliation, 41
- Central University College, 1
- Chaldean Oracles, 80
- Chaney, Eric: on life expectancy of Christian and Muslim rulers, 249; on written works in scientific fields in Islamic world, 311
- charities: religion as, 321–24; taxation exemption for, 321–22, 325
- Charles Bonnet syndrome, hallucinations of, 385n10
- chatbot program, 329
- Chauvet cave, site of shamanistic rituals, 305, 402n18
- Chen, Carolyn, on Buddhism resonating for tech entrepreneurs, 213
- Chen, Daniel, on financial crisis (1998) in Indonesia, 76
- Chen, Joy, on China's governance, 247
- Chen, Yuyu, on economic growth in China and Protestant missionary work, 312
- Chetty, Raj, study examining social network ties, 99–100
- Chiang, Ted: character Neil Fisk and wife, 129; short story “Hell Is the Absence of God”, 128–29, 140
- Chicago's South Side, Maquis Park in, 91
- children: physical and sexual abuse of, 234; Savile as groomer and abuser of, 293–94. See also sexual abuse
- Chile, importance of religion, 46, 361
- China: astrologers aiding kings in ancient, 246; civilizations of, 31; Communist Party in, 28; Cultural Revolution, 288; dynasties investing in effective administrations, 246–47; economic growth of, and Protestant missionary work, 312; local and folk religions, 49; Muslim, 83; one-child policy of Communist, 347; population growth, 48; Protestantism in, 367n4; religiosity in, 360–61; survey participants, 360; technologies of repression in, 340; technology relative to West, 315; very low religiosity state, 352, 352

- Chinese Catholic Church, government supporting “official”, 14
- Chinese government, supporting “official” religions, 14; surveillance of population, 219, 309
- Chinese Mohist school of philosophy, atomism and, 313–14
- Chinese religions, 195
- Chin Kung, Chinese Buddhist master, 406n12
- Chinnamma: memories of the dance, 197, 199–200, 215; temple of South India, 198, 199, 230
- Choi, James, evaluating a Protestant Christian education program, 230
- “Christ for All Nations Evangelism Bootcamp” (course), 229–30
- Christian Brothers: abuse estimates, 400n22; O’Toole on abuse in schools by, 287–88; practice of, 208; violence of, 288
- Christian Church(es): association with political conservatism, 59; individual freedom and, 316; Leppin on election of bishops, 209–10; marriage pattern, 316, 404n43; medieval, conforming to temple society model, 201; Paul on early, 94; political establishment in Europe in Middle Ages, 13; providing education and health services, 75
- Christian denominations: non-Catholic, 48–49; share of Roman Catholics, 48
- Christianity, 80; Africa, 49; Augustine the Hippo on, 81; census returns and, 45–46; Crusades in history of, 270; decline of, 343; disagreements over doctrine, 137; emergence of, 195; fast growing, 22; gender and religiosity, 272–73; ideological struggle with Islam, 59; Islam and, 47–48, 61; legitimacy of succession, 205; members sharing supernatural beliefs, 33; missionaries spreading, 224; Pascal on “inclining” or “betting” for or against, 126–27; religiosity of men and women, 331–32; repeating stories of founder, 276–77; Roman Empire under Constantine, 80; shares in world populations, 348–49, 349; state of continual compromise, 214; violence in, 10, 137, 238–39, 250–52, 254–55, 270, 272, 288; waves of purification, 171–72
- Christianity in the Twentieth Century* (Stanley), 38
- Christian platform, challenges of modern world, 49–50
- Christians: China, 361; in China, 28; violence against other Christians, 255
- Christian worship, reciting a “creed” in, 133
- church(es), 7; American adults as members, 51; as community, 92; employment law for salaried employees, 366–67n28
- church attendance: Corbi and Miessi Sanches on model for, 259–60; political turnout and, 13; secular shopping and, 75
- church members: community of, 99; tithing obligations, 97–98
- Church of England: concern over popularity of New Dissenters, 9; inaction of Welby (archbishop) on Smyth’s proclivities, 280; Nash on, 285; salary of parsons, 9
- Church of Latter-Day Saints: schisms in, 212; succession crisis of, 206
- Church of Scientology, 83; on “disconnection” policy, 400n21; founder Hubbard, 389–90n10; literature on, 400n21; on recruitment pressures, 286; Reiman’s encounter with recruiter, 378n10
- Ciccone, Antonio, on religious participation by American communities with agricultural risk, 76
- City of God* (Augustine), 172
- Civil War, 54
- “clash of civilizations”, Huntington on, 42
- climate change, agriculture and, 195
- clubs, Iannacone on thinking of religions as, 98–99
- cocaine, consumption of, 193
- cognitive extravagance, 188; example of, 186–87; feature of human thinking, 186;

- knowledge specialists in spreading stories, 188, 387n35; risks of, 188
- cognitive talents: as “cognitive gadgets”, 115–16; foragers, 144
- Cohn, Norman, on immense reassurance for individuals, 152
- collection plate, passion and commitment to give, 71–72
- collective effervescence, Durkheim on moments of, 109
- Colombia, importance of religion, 359
- Commission of Investigation into the Roman Catholic Mother and Baby Homes in Ireland, 131
- common sense, in narratives, 157
- communication, large language models (LLMs), 326–28
- communication technologies, world’s religions and, 61
- communion wine, blood of Christ and, 140–41
- Communist Party, China, 28
- communities, religious preferences, 84–85
- community: abuse and, 289–90; celibacy and survival of, 175–78; conforming to norm, 163; interactions at church, 99; interactions of church members in, 99; low tolerance toward antisocial behavior, 383n50; members of religious, 92–93; nightclubs as, 96; priests and mediators, 88, 90–92; recruitment to religious movements, 273–74; religious, as web of interlocking relationships, 95; religious, shaping relationships, 99–100; religious organizations building, 101–2; synchronization of members, 114–15; Tsimane forager-farmers, 94–95; worship service at Word of Life Bible Church, 89
- comparative mythology, discipline of, 156
- computer program, ELIZA, 328
- conception and life, religious disputes, 130
- Confessions* (Augustine), 396n5
- Confucianism, 80; emergence of, 195; ideology of, 246
- Confucius, 49
- consecrational principles, political systems, 320–21
- Constantine (Emperor), 132; conversion of, 250; Roman Empire under, 80
- Constitution of 1937, Ireland, 55
- controversial issues, legislation, 55, 371n44
- Corbi, Raphael, on model of demand for church attendance, 259–60, 261
- Corinth, Christian community at, 93–94
- coronavirus pandemic, 252; Republican and Democratic church services, 261
- corporate transformation, religion, 59–61
- corporatization, 59
- Council of Nicaea, 122, 132, 134
- Counter-Reformation, 311
- Country Girls, The* (O’Brien), 371n44
- COVID-19, 83; Google searches for prayer, 76; pandemic, 43
- Cox, Harvey, 61
- Cranmer, Thomas, recanting Protestant theology, 135
- creed(s): belief, 136; Christian, 134; Greek word for, 133
- Cromwell, Thomas, Henry VIII’s minister, 14
- Crusades: measure of religiosity and, 273–74, 331; recruitment to in the history of Christianity, 270
- Cullen, Paul, Archbishop of Dublin, architect of dogma of papal infallibility, 55
- cults: distinction between religion and, 283; threats of force against members, 23
- cultural Catholicism, 54, 371n40
- Cultural Revolution, China’s, 288
- cultural transmission, economic approach to, 374–75n39
- culture: repression or permissiveness playing role in abuse, 282, 399–400n14; of secrecy, 287–89; sexual abuse and, 282–83; of silence, 287–89, 293
- Cuomo, Andrew, restricting religious services during pandemic, 261
- Cyropaedia* (Xenophon), 374n35

- Dabashi, Hamid: on scene while growing up in Ashura, 151; on Shi'ism, 152
- Dabiq* (magazine), 268
- Daisy, member of religious community, 93
- Dalit castes, untouchables, 266
- Dalmas, Antoine, describing secret Vodou ceremony, 107
- Darwin, Charles, natural selection by Wallace and, 185–86
- David: narrative of rebellious son Absalom, 149, 170; Torah justice system of king David, 12
- Davie, Grace, on decline of religious institutions, 363
- Dawkins, Richard, The Blind Watchmaker, 185
- Daye, Zhang: memoir of child in Taiping Rebellion, 173; The World of a Tiny Insect, 148
- deaths of despair, 52
- De beneficiis* (Seneca), 375n13
- de-escalation technology, Vodou providing, 90
- Dehejia, Rajeev, on natural disaster losses of members of religious organizations, 76
- deities, “immanent” religion in everyday life, 26
- Deleire, Thomas, on natural disaster losses of members of religious organizations, 76
- deliberations, religious choices, 82–84
- Della Subin, Anna: on men unwittingly turned divine, 241–42; on ntambwe bwanga cult, 242
- Delphi, Plutarch at temple in, 44
- demand side of religion, 63; autonomy of the vulnerable, 67–74; distinctive character of religious choice, 82–87; religious choice and agency, 74–82; vulnerability to losses and, 77
- Democratic Republic of Congo, icons by armed groups, 5–6
- Democrats: comparing Black and Hispanic, 260–61; Republicans and, 260
- Democritus, atomism by, 313
- demographic competition, religion and, 60–61
- demographics, population shares and, 370n8
- demography, religions and, 347–48
- de Montfort, Simon, opportunistic initiative of, 248
- denser networks, reducing abuse risk, 294–95
- depression, study of personal religiosity and, 101
- De rerum natura* (Lucretius), 314
- devadasi system: Chinnamma as dancer, 197, 199–200, 215; India, 197, 199; legal abolition of, 199; supporting temple, 200
- de Waal, Frans: on prosocial behavior in primates, 181; on skepticism about value of surveys, 359–60
- Dialogue Concerning Heresies* (More), 191
- Diderot, Denis, on Pascal’s argument, 127
- Did the Greeks Believe in Their Myths?* (Veyne), 141
- digital platforms, 102
- Diocese of Phoenix, 376n8, 377n9
- diplomacy, religion as form of, 35
- disasters, religiosity and response to unpredictable, 77, 373n25
- discernment (discretio), 120
- Dissolution of the Monasteries in England, 366n27
- Divine Principle, The* (Moon), 309
- divine status, Sahlins on importance of, 243–44
- division of labor: costs and benefits of, between rulers and priests, 247–52; similarity between Augustine and Smith on, 374n35
- Dobbelaere, Karel, on secularization, 363
- “doctrinal” mode, religiosity, 116–18
- doctrine and belief, domain of, 104
- domain of doctrine and belief, 104
- domain of ritual, 104
- Doniger, Wendy, on Hindu text Rig Veda, 136
- Dor, Daniel, Boyd and, 162
- Dorzé community, Sperber on, 178–79
- dreams, electric activity in brain, 29

- Druze of Lebanon, emphasis on dress and ritual, 33–34
- Dubois, Laurent, describing Dalmas' offering of the animal, 107
- Dudley, Leonard, on technical innovations, 309
- Dunbar, Robin, on selective pressure for larger brains, 185
- Dunning-Kruger effect, 143
- Durkheim, Emile, 69; on breakdown of local institutions, 362–63; moments of "collective effervescence", 109; secularization diminishing importance of religion, 36; sense of belonging, 302
- Dvorak, Antonin, Slavonic Dances, 40
- Earnshaw, Samuel, on decline of Christian religion, 44
- earthquakes, experiencing, and praying, 76
- Eastern and Western Churches, 133–34
- Eastern Europe, 46; battlefields of, 6; importance of religion in lives, 51
- East India Company, shared business practices, 229
- Ecclesiastical History* (John of Ephesus), 211
- Eckstein, Zvi, on economic incentives of Jewish diaspora, 254
- economic development, religion and, 359
- economic prosperity, religiosity and, 56–57
- economics: analyzing religious decisions using, 70–71; religion and, 9–12
- Economics* (Samuelson), 69
- economics of religion, cultural transmission, 374–75n39
- Edward VI (King), 135
- Egyptian god Osiris, murder of, by brother Seth, 152
- Ehrenberg, Ronald, analyzing religious decisions, 70
- Elawa, Nathan Irmiya, on behavior of Christian missionaries in medieval Ireland, 223–24
- electoral democracy, 263
- Elizabeth II (Queen), 125
- ELIZA computer program, 328
- El Quiche, McCleary on relations between Church among indigenous Maya population, 238–39
- El Salvador, 12
- embodied religion: state of, 183, 184; Sterelny on state of, 183–84
- emotion, religious rituals and, 292
- Empson, William, systematic asymmetry in face of Buddha, 328–29
- enchantment, term, 36
- endogamy, justification of, 214–15
- Engelstein, Laura, on Skoptsy sect, 176–77
- England: on churchgoing habits in Kent, 44; decline in Christianity, 43; Knapp on people believing religion brought worldly benefits, 69–70
- England, Elizabethan, Knapp on people believing religion brought worldly benefits, 69–70
- Enlightenment, 363
- Ephesus, Paul's preaching to, 94
- Epicurus, atomism by, 313
- Erdogan, Recep Tayyip: personal religiosity as key component of political strategy for Turkey, 12–13; prayer at newly opened Taksim mosque, 236
- eternal life, religious belief in, 129–30
- eternal youth, cosmetics "anti-aging" products, 129
- Ethiopia, importance of religion, 359
- ethno-religions, in Africa, Asia and Latin America, 49
- Europe: Catholic, 350, 351; Christianity concentration in, 47; Christian reformation, 61; low religiosity stable state of northwestern, 349, 351; political establishment of Christian Church in Middle Ages, 13; religious proportions, 345, 346; replacement of Christian population, 42; share of Christianity, 46; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350; Smith on scars of violent wars of religion, 10

- European marriage pattern (EMP), 316, 404n43
- European Reformation, 222, 340
- evangelical Christian organizations, influence over Republican Party, 14–15
- evangelical churches, 46
- Evangelicals for Trump campaign, 236
- evangelism training, 230
- evolution, non-Bayesian reasoning and, 143–46
- evolution of religion, 194–95; celibacy and community survival, 175–78; individual understanding of world, 185, 386n24; process of, 184–89; reassurance versus suspicion, 189–96; understanding a counterintuitive psychology, 178–84
- Facebook, 97; confederation of platforms, 208; secular platform, 332; single-homing on, 218; study examining social network ties, 100
- “faces in the clouds” theory, 180, 385n12
- faith-based organizations, United States, 11–12
- Falwell, Jerry, on members as “customers”, 78–79
- family: common sites of abuse, 290; Goody on set of rules governing, 316; religious movements urging members to cut off contact with, 286; religious preferences, 84–85
- Family Planning* (manual), International Family Planning Association, 55
- Fenton, Kirsten, on monk William of Malmesbury, 270
- fertility: prosperity and, 347–48, 358–59; religious movements’ encouragement of, 177
- Field, Clive, on churchgoing habits in Kent, 44
- “Filioque” dispute, 133
- Financial Times* (newspaper), 42
- Finke, Roger: analyzing religious decisions, 70; on Catholic emigration to U.S., 109; on systematic evidence on religion and secularization, 362
- Fischer, Claude, on religious beliefs of Americans, 260
- flashbulb memories, recollections as, 117
- Fletcher, David: on covering up reports of Smyth’s activities, 287; as Iwerne camp director, 285
- Flynn, Gerard Mannix: Nothing to Say, 288; on religions cultivating shame, 289
- folklore study, Michalopoulos and Meng Xue, 163, 168
- folk religion, 50, 55, 59–60, 226, 237, 368n20
- fon* (ruler of Nso people), conversion to Islam, 40; mosque in grounds of palace, 50
- foragers: cognitive talents of, 144; depression among, 94; manipulation among, 189; prosociality and, 386n17; religiosity in, 34; sexual abuse among, 268; storytelling among, 164, 173
- Force, Eric, on earthquake experiences and praying, 76
- Ford Motor Company: creation of, 224–25; rituals and symbolism of, 225
- Ford Sociological Department, 224–25
- Foreign Affairs* (journal), 42
- foreign media, depictions of Vodou in, 90
- Forrest, Ian, on process of governing the Church, 209
- Fox, Jonathan: on decline of religion as public force, 363; on state regulation of religions, 258
- France: animal drawings in the Salon Noir, 300, 305; Cathar movement, 248; Chauvet cave in, 305; conflicts between Catholics and Protestants, 123; low religiosity stable state of, 349, 351; parental and individual’s religion, 385n6; regulation of Islam in, 14; religiosity, 52, 53, 59; repression of Protestant Huguenots, 10; Smith writing The Wealth of Nations in, 10; technical education in primary schools, 312
- franchising, religious organizations, 210, 211

- Francis (Pope), on decline of faith in Europe and West, 44
- Francis I (King), 202
- Franco, Catholic Church and, 53–54
- Frazer, James, 69; The Golden Bough, 155; secularization diminishing importance of religion, 36
- Freud, Sigmund, 155; secularization diminishing importance of religion, 36; unconscious motivation, 157
- Friedrich, Markus: on history of Jesuit order, 229; The Jesuits, 197
- From Politics to the Pews* (Margolis), 260
- Fruehwirth, Jane Cooley, study of personal religiosity and depression, 101
- funeral expenses, program helping with, 77
- futurology, challenges of, 299–303
- Gallup, 43, 51, 52
- Galoppin, Thomas, on ancient polytheisms, 50
- Ganapati Chaturthi aarti* (lamp offering), New Delhi, 111
- Gandhi, Mahatma, 254; ahimsa (nonviolence) of, 254
- Ganesh statue, taxi driver with, 99
- Gardner, David, on rapprochement between Islam and Christianity, 370n9
- Gardner, Peter, Paliyans of India, 380n34
- Gay News* (magazine), 278
- Gellner, David: on political leaders accepting Hindus adopting Buddhist traditions, 74; religion in censuses, 60
- gender: demonstration calling for ordination of women, 265; The First Blast of the Trumpet Against the Monstrous Regiment of Women (Knox), 265; gods are gendered, 267–70; homage to Kali (goddess), 264, 266–67; literature on propensity to vote, 271, 397n19; power asymmetry between men and women, 234; reformulating India's civil code, 397n23; religiosity as bundle of traits, 273–77; religiosity of men and women, 331–32; religious gender gap, 271–73; systematic differences in talents and preferences, 277, 398n34
- General Social Survey, 52
- geometric diagrams, kolangal (sing. kolam) in India, 65, 66
- George, Pastor, member of religious community, 93
- Germany: anti-Semitic persecuting in Protestant regions of, 254; low religiosity stable state of, 349, 351; religiosity, 52, 53, 59
- Ghana, 1, 12; Assemblies of God in, 154; economists studying religion in, 77–78
- Ghanaian Council of Churches, on ethics of prayer for curing sickness, 68
- Ghanaian man, on donating to collection plate, 71–72
- Gideon Bibles, arrangement with hotels, 211
- Gilbertus of Toulouse, sculpture of Salomé and King Herod, 279
- global gods, Zeus, Yahweh, and Aphrodite, 50
- globalization, mosque in Kumbo, 38, 40–42
- global phenomenon, decline in religiosity, 43
- global population, shares by major religious groups, 343–44, 344
- Gnosticism, 192
- Goddess of Plague (Boginiata Chuma), 219
- gods, gendered, 267–70
- Gokmen, Gunes, on historic societies and hierarchies of power, 243–44
- Golden Bough, The* (Frazer), 155
- Good Samaritan, parable by Jesus, 329
- Goody, Jack, on rules governing the family, 316
- Google, 42, 95; “evangelism training”, 230; N-gram tool, 153; search engine, 97; secular platform, 332
- Google searches, prayer, 76
- Gospel, Saint Mark, 168–69
- Gospel of Saint John, 307
- Gould, Hannah, on Smart Prayer Beads, 111
- governments, promising benefits for those suffering shocks, 76
- Gozzi, Carlo, 382n24

- Grace, 1, 68; on benefits of going to church, 86–87; community of church, 102, 103; everyday labor of, 1, 4; generosity of, 3–4, 102; giving of earnings to church, 73; interactions at church, 99; Pastor William and, 3–4, 9; relationship to her church, 67, 102; religious movement, 3–4; religious persuasion of, 6, 7; Sunday school group, 3
- Graham, Franklin, family succession of, 203–4
- Graystone, Andrew: aiding Newman for Smyth documentary, 280, 398n1; on Iwerne camps as cult, 283; on recruitment tactics for camps, 286
- Great Britain, low religiosity stable state of, 349–50, 351
- “great replacement” theory, Camus on, 42
- Greece, cultural revolution challenging immanent religion, 31
- Greek myth, Eteocles and Polyneices, 150
- Greeley, Andrew: as advocate for victims of abusive priests, 301, 402n8; analyzing religious decisions, 70; futurology of, 299–303; Religion in the Year 2000, 299–300
- Gregorian reforms, 132
- Gregory (bishop of Nyssa), on believers and theological discourse, 132–33, 379n24
- Gregory I (Pope), on rules governing the family, 316
- grooming: religious organizations, 290; Smyth’s approach to victims, 284–85; Smyth’s network at camps, 283–86; term, 284
- Group for Analyzing and Measuring Attitudes in Iran (GAMAAN), 406n14
- group membership, rituals as markers of, 108
- Gruber, Jonathan: on church attendance and secular shopping, 75; on social spending in America, 77
- Guatemala, 12; census data classification, 60; Christian Churches of, 240; civil war, 238; ladinos as power group in, 239
- Guatemalan civil war, 238, 392n9
- Guiso, Luigi, individual religiosity, 190
- Guriev, Sergey, on spin dictators, 338
- Gutenberg, Johannes, invention of movable-type press, 307
- habitation, in narratives, 159
- Hadza of Tanzania, presence of spirits, 34
- Hagen, Edward, on simple explanations outperforming complex ones, 187–88
- Hagia Sophia, reinstatement of, 13
- Hahn, Johannes, on religious violence as phenomenon of public life, 251
- Haiti: kidnapping rates in, 375n7; Protestant churches in, 92; ritual feared and repressed of Vodou devotees, 106; trustworthiness of more-religious people, 182, 386n19; Vodou recognized as religion in, 90
- Hak-ja, Han, Unification Church, 205
- Hall, Claire, on Origen of Alexandria, 81
- Hamlet, Shakespeare’s character, 188
- Han dynasty, 246
- Hanson, Gordon, on decentralized governance structures, 209
- Harari, Yuval Noah, on belief in religion vs. corporations, 189, 387n38
- Harper, Kyle, on Roman society and slaves, 275–76
- Hasidic tales, 167–68, 383n55; collection of, 167–68
- Hasmonean dynasty, MacCulloch on Judea under, 81–82
- Hausner, Sondra, religion in censuses, 60
- Havement, Heather, study of US magazine industry, 207
- Head, Randolph, on competition driving differentiation, 222
- healing cults, Horden and Purcell on, 50
- healing ministry: ethics of prayer for curing diabetes or cancer, 68; Pentecostal churches, 67–68
- ‘Heavenly Kingdom of Supreme Peace’ movement, Hong Xiuquan of, 244
- Hegghammer, Thomas: on international jihadi movements, 268; on international volunteer force, 396n8

- Henrich, Joseph, on content of our beliefs, 144
- Henry (VIII), Cromwell as minister, 14
- Henry VIII (King), 125, 135, 205
- Hercules, temple of, 91
- Hermes, god, 82
- Hermes Trismegistos, fulfilment of prophecy by temple priest, 44
- Hero with a Thousand Faces, The* (Campbell), 156
- Heyes, Cecilia: on cognitive skills in reading, 186, 387n29; talents as “cognitive gadgets”,
115–16
- Hicks, John, on monopoly profit, 71
- hidden agents and forces in the world, 179; belief without explanation, 179–80; by-product, 180; delusions, 385n10; group-level advantages, 180–81; individual-level advantages, 181; selectivity, 180; Sterelny on belief of, 178–81; universal across human societies, 182–84
- Hindu, 46; animal sacrifices, 267; robots in rituals, 111
- Hinduism, 9, 80; absence of doctrine, 212;
animal sacrifices, 267; emergence of,
195; fidelity of, 17; Lakshmi as goddess of prosperity, 31; Lingayat movement opposing caste distinctions, 215; as main brand, 59; narratives, 170; operation of temples, 201; rivalry, 137; South Asia, 74; spirits of, 33; theology of, 230–31;
violence in, 6, 137, 254–55, 324, 395n63
- Hindu-Muslim violence, Jha on, during interethnic rioting in India, 254–55
- Hindu organizations: providing education and health services, 75; sexual abuse in, 282
- Hindu temples, 13, 31; collective space for groups, 217; Ticku, Shrivastava and Iyer on Muslim desecration of, 255
- history, 69
- Hitler, Adolf, prophecy of, 368n15
- Hobbes, Thomas: on rulers and their subjects, 320; on slavery, 318–19; on submission to the monarchy, 319
- Hofstadter, Richard, “Paranoid Style in American Politics”, 193
- Holy Catholic Apostolic, and Roman Church, 55
- homooousian, homoiousian or, 132
- homosexuality: Catholic clergy and, 282,
293, 337; illegality in Ireland, 55
- Honduras, 12
- Hong Xiuquan, occupation of Nanjing, 172
- Hopkins, Keith, on marriage age of Roman women, 276
- Horden, Peregrine: on healing cults, 50; on medieval cult of relics, 223
- Horton, Robin: “African Traditional Thought and Western Science”, 175; on numinous as defining characteristic of religiosity, 85–86; on theoretical reasoning, 187; on traditional and scientifically oriented cultures, 185, 387n25
- Hotelling, Harold, on making services similar, 220, 221
- Hout, Michael, on religious beliefs of Americans, 260
- Hubbard, L. Ron, Church of Scientology,
389–90n10
- human beings: exchanging promises of future rewards, 188–89; needs for religious movements, 330–31
- human capacity, for suspension of disbelief,
189, 387n36
- human capital, 403n31
- human sacrifice, 151, 381n4
- human social life: consecrational principles, 320–21, 324; exemption for religion, 321–24; legitimacy as general principle, 318; making collective life tolerable, 325; obligations of, 317–18; power in owning or managing a business, 320; transactional principles, 318–20, 324
- human thinking, as cognitive extravagance, 186, 188
- Hunefer, weighing of heart of, 26
- Hungerman, Daniel: on church attendance and secular shopping, 75; on social spending in America, 77

- Huntington, Samuel, “clash of civilizations”, 42
- Hutterites, 222
- Hypatia, murder of, 250
- hyperactive agency detection devices, 180
- Iannacone, Laurence: analyzing religious decisions, 70; on thinking of religions as clubs, 98
- IBM Watson, 111
- ibn Ali, Hossein, death of, 148, 150–51, 168
- icons, taking into battle, 5–6
- ideas: atomism, 313–15; individualism, 313, 315–16; religion and, 313–17; science, 313, 316–17
- identity: commitment to, 73; exclusive view of, 74; religious, 45
- ideological religion, 184
- Ignatius of Loyola: as founder of Jesuit order, 228; rebuilding shattered life, 202; Spiritual Exercises, 120; story of, 202, 389–90n10
- Iliad* (Homer), 80, 166
- “imagistic” mode, religiosity, 116–18
- imitators: extravagant, 112–13; learning by over-imitation, 112–16; suspending disbelief when imitating, 113
- immanentist, term, 367n7
- “immanent” religion(s), 21; in everyday life, 26; narratives, 169–70; transcendental and, 30–37
- Importance of Being Earnest, The* (Wilde), 150
- India: atomism at Charvaka school of philosophy in, 313; Axial Age, 31; Bharatiya Janata Party, 59; devadasi system, 197, 199; geometric diagram called kolangal (sing. kolam), 65; Hinduism, 74; Iyer on religious organizations providing variety of services, 75; kolam for Pongal harvest festival, 66; Partition (1947), 324; temple dancers, 197, 198, 199
- Indian religions, 195
- individualism, idea of, 313, 315–16, 317
- individual lives, importance of religion in, 51–53
- Indonesia, importance of religion, 359
- “inferiority complex”, Adler’s theory of, 157
- Inglehart, Ronald: insisting on standardized survey methods, 357–58; on religion’s decline, 42–43; on secularization hypothesis, 358
- inner emigration, term, 71
- Innocent II (Pope), 248
- innovation: modernity and religiosity, 312; science and technology, 312–13
- Instagram, 95, 97; multi-homing, 218
- instrumental stance: adoption of, 119; over-imitation, 115
- insurance, modern institutions providing, 76
- intelligence: attention to learning from community, 144–45; collective and individual, 145; religiosity and, 274–75; social nature of, 144
- Internal Revenue Service (IRS): church exemptions, 322; Guide for Churches and Religious Organizations, 405n52
- International Economic Association, Philippines Economic Association, 393n14
- International Family Planning Association, 55
- internet: evolution of, 303; launch of, 309
- In the Blink of an Eye* (Murch), 65
- invisible spirits, 25, 27–30; religious organizations and, 33
- Iran: fertility in, 347–48; number of children per woman, 48; World Values Survey data, 339
- Iranian rapper, execution of, 12
- Ireland: Catholic Church in, 55; Church meeting needs of members in, 55–56; Constitution of 1937, 55; election of Mary Robinson, 56; high religiosity state in, 350, 351; importance of religion, 46, 361; O’Toole on abuse in schools by Christian Brothers, 287–88; project of Cullen, 55; religiosity, 53; secularization hypothesis, 56; transformation of religious landscape, 55–56, 371n45

- Irish Free State, 55
Irish Sketch Book, The (Thackeray), 121
- Islam, 9, 80; Africa, 49; Auriol and Platteau on central religious authority in, 248; census returns and, 45; Christianity and, 47–48, 61; conversion of fon to, 40; death penalty for renouncing publicly, 6; disagreements over doctrine, 137; emergence of, 195; expansion of, 343; fast growing, 22; fidelity of, 17; gender and religiosity, 272–73; global march across Africa, 40; “high Islam” and “low Islam”, 248; ideological struggle with Christianity, 59; mosques, 14; Muslim rulers of first caliphate imposing poll tax on non-Muslims, 245–46; operation of mosques, 201; policing of authenticity in, 213; shares in world populations, 348–49, 349; state of continual compromise, 214; Sunni and Shi’a Muslims, 205; violence in, 137, 213–14, 254–55, 268–69, 272, 324; waves of purification, 171–72
- Islamic Council, “moderate” of French government, 15
- Islamic radicalism, French government combatting, 15
- Islamic Republic, Amir Kabir University protest, 327
- Israel: finance minister calling for Torah justice system, 12; Netanyahu’s religious transformation of educational curricula, 13
- Israeli Defense Forces, 83
- Italy, religiosity in, 351
- Iwerne Minster: Christian camps for teenage boys, 280; grooming network of camps, 283–86; Smyth and camps, 278, 280–87
- Iyer, Sriya: on Muslim desecration of Hindu temples, 255; on parents in India sending children to Islamic schools, 75; studying personal religiosity and depression, 101
- Jackson, Matthew, study examining social network ties, 100
- Jainism, 237
- James, William, Varieties of Religious Experience, 86
- James Senior, Henry, on spiritual life, 292
- Japan: abortion in, 237; importance of religion, 46; religiosity of, 235, 237; very low religiosity state, 352, 352
- Jaspers, Karl: accuracy of account, 32; development of transcendental religion, 31
- jatis*, caste defined by occupation, 215
- Jerusalem, 82
- Jerusalem Temple, 81
- Jesuit order: founding of, 228–29; Ignatius of Loyola as founder, 202
- Jesuits, The* (Friedrich), 197
- Jesus: Christianity, 202; crucifixion under Pontius Pilate, 153; Good Samaritan parable, 329; Gospel of Saint Mark, 168–69; Gospel of Saint Matthew, 190; resurrection of, 153–54; stories of, 156
- Jewish communities, Brown on abuse in, 290–91
- Jewish organizations: providing education and health services, 75; sexual abuse in, 282
- Jews, as chosen people, 34
- Jha, Saumitra, on incidence of Hindu-Muslim violence in Gujarat during interethnic rioting, 254–55
- jihad campaign, Sudanese government of Omar al-Bashir, 394n38
- ‘Jihadi John’, Dabiq magazine, 268
- Jill, member of religious community, 93
- job offers, facing choice between two, 73
- John of Ephesus, model for understanding religious movements, 211
- John Paul II (Pope): appointing bishop in El Quiche, 238; Poland, 57
- John Smyth Independent Case Review* (Scripture Union), 398n2
- Johnson, Dominic, on decline in religious belief, 43
- Johnson, Monte, on scientific subjects in Lucretius’ poem, 314
- Johnson, Noel, on evolution of political power, 256–57

- José de Arrese, Pedro, Baptism through Incision, 130
- Joseph Campbell Foundation, 382n21
- Joseph of Arimathea, English Church by, 205
- Judaism, 80; emergence of, 195; MacCulloch on Judea under Hasmonean dynasty, 81–82; members sharing supernatural beliefs, 33
- Julius Caesar, 242
- Jung, Carl, 155; notion of archetypes, 156; on religion in Christian West, 85
- Jungian psychology, 156
- Ka'ba in Mecca, 223
- Kali (goddess): homage to, 264, 266–67; sacrifices to, 266–67
- Kalinga, conquest of, 6
- Kanter, Rosabeth Moss, study of utopian communes, 176
- Karbala, festival of Ashura, 149, 150
- Karlan, Dean, evaluating a Protestant Christian education program, 230
- karma, Hindu and Buddhist traditions, 292
- Kenya, 12; Christian respondents, 49; importance of religion, 359; Pentecostal churches, 49; Turkana pastoralists of, 193
- Keyes, Charles, converting villagers to Buddhism, 384n63
- Khaire, Mukti, study of US magazine industry, 207
- King Herod and Salomé, sculpture of, 279
- Kirill, Patriarch: sermon by, 5, 365n1; supporting Russian invasion, 366n22
- Kitiarsa, Pattana, on harmonious coexistence of deities in Thailand, 212–13
- Knapp, Jeffrey, on people thinking religion brought worldly benefits, 69–70
- Knox, John, The First Blast of the Trumpet Against the Monstrous Regiment of Women, 265
- kolangal* (sing. kolam): geometric design, 65, 66; homage to goddess Lakshmi, 65; Pongal harvest festival, 66; story of, 67
- Koyama, Mark, on evolution of political power, 256–57
- Krishna, stories of, 156
- Kuchler, Theresa, study examining social network ties, 100
- Kumbo: imams of, 50; as center of violent struggle, 369n1
- Kuran, Timur, on stability in Ottoman Empire, 249
- labor market: on identity markers for integrating, 74; platform, 96
- Lagos, mosque, 31
- Lakshmi: Hindu goddess of prosperity, 31; kolangal (sing. kolam) as homage to, 65, 66; offering to, 83; temple to, 31
- large language models (LLMs), 326–30; chatbot program, 329; ChatGPT, 326; on difference between true and false religious messages, 329–30
- Lassébie, Julie, on Pentecostalism in Ghana, 77
- Latimer (Bishop), execution of, 135
- Latin America, 46, 49; Catholics in, 48; importance of religion in lives, 51; Pentecostal presence, 12; religion in, 28; Roman Catholic Church in, 49; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350
- Law and Justice Party, Poland, 57–58
- leadership, candidates for, 204, 390n13
- “Lebensraum”, Hitler’s Germany, 173
- legislation, controversial issues, 55, 371n44
- Leppin, Hartmut: on election of bishops, 209–10; on Gnostics, 192
- Leucippus, atomism, 313
- Levy, Honor, conversion to Catholicism, 128
- Lewis, C. S., on religion in Christian West, 85
- Liberius (bishop of Rome), death of, 250
- life expectancy of rulers, Christian and Muslim worlds, 249, 395n39
- Lightner, Aaron, on simple explanations outperforming complex ones, 187–88
- limerick, 326

- limited-liability corporation, 321
- Lingayat movement, opposing caste distinctions, 215
- Loewenstein, David, on More's Dialogue warning of heretics, 191–92
- London, Quaker meeting house, 31
- Lu, Yunfeng, on applying survey questions in China, 361
- Luca, Nathalie, on prosperity gospel and marketing operations, 210–11, 390n30
- Luckmann, Thomas, on secularization, 363
- Lucretius: De rerum natura, 314; manuscript discovery, 403–404n36
- Luhrmann, Tanya: on belief in magic, 35; on personal relationship with God, 101
- Lutheranism, 134
- Lutherans, 222
- Luther's mastery of message, printing, 227
- Luttmer, Erzo, on natural disaster losses of members of religious organizations, 76
- Macbeth, Duncan and, 157
- McCaffree, Kevin, on decline in religious belief, 43
- McCleary, Rachel: on beatification and canonization in Catholic Church, 222–23; on Catholic Church reestablishing its legitimacy, 239–40; classification of census data, 60; on personal religiosity, 363–64; on political support for religion, 258; on Protestant movements in Guatemala, 391n45; on relations between Churches among indigenous Maya population, 238–39; on religious beliefs and economic growth, 190
- McCloskey, Deirdre, on individualism, 316
- MacCulloch, Diarmaid: on heresy, 131; on Judea under Hasmonean dynasty, 81–82
- Macfarlane, Alan, on individualism, 316
- Macaulay, Lord, 135, 380n28
- Madonna statue, 109
- madrassas, 7
- Madurai, great temple, 82
- magic: coexistence of religion and, 368n21; decline of, 34, 36, 369n27; as form of technology, 34–35; religion and, 34–35; suspicion of term, 34, 368n19; Thomas on, 316–17; Vodou, 90; witchcraft and, 35
- Mahabharata*, 166, 211, 212; Karna and Arjuna in, 150
- Malawi experiment, collecting HIV/STD results and receiving a cash payment, 72
- Malinowski, Bronislaw, 155; on myth fulfilling primitive culture, 163
- Maltsev, Vladimir, on Skoptsy's repudiation of norms of secular society, 177
- Mandate of Heaven, agriculture and war validating, 246
- Manifest Destiny, 173
- Mansfield Town Football Club, 299
- manumissions of slaves, Church encouraging, 200, 389n4
- Mao Zedong, 48, 49
- Maquis Park, Venkatesh description of, 91–92
- marabouts* (Muslim holy men), settlement of, 91
- Marcos, Ferdinand, acolyte praise for, 240–41, 242–43, 262
- Margolis, Michele, on political partisanship of religious participation, 260
- Marlene, pastor helping, 91
- Maronite Cathedral of Saint Georges, 39
- marriage: moral code and, 276; pattern of Christian Church, 316, 404n43
- Marshall, Alfred: on ordinary business of life, 7; Principles of Economics, 69
- Martha, member of religious community, 93
- martyrdom, Catholic concept of, 239
- Marx, Karl: on religion as “the opium of the people”, 69, 372n1; secularization diminishing importance of religion, 36
- Mather, Cotton, of Salem witch trials, 44
- Mathew, Sarah: on content of our beliefs, 144; Turkana pastoralists of Kenya, 193

- Matsuzawa, Tetsuro: memory-imagination trade-off hypothesis, 161; observation of chimpanzees, 161–62; observations of chimpanzees, 161–62, 383n40
- Mauss, Marcel, on gift exchange, 94
- Maya kingdoms, temples in, 201
- Maya population, McCleary on relations between Churches, 238–39
- Mecca, 82; sacred spring of, 223
- media and entertainment industries, 12
- mediators, community, 88, 90–92
- medical advice, religious organizations steering people from, 67
- meeting houses, 7
- Mehmed III (Ottoman sultan), 150
- Mehmed III (Sultan), murdered brothers of, 152
- membership: benefits in religious community, 92–93; religious association and, 82, 374n37
- memory-imagination trade-off hypothesis: Matsuzawa's, 161; observation of chimpanzees, 161–62
- Mendez, Juan Barrera, beatification of, 239
- Meng Xue, Melanie, on folklore study, 163, 168
- Mennonites, 222
- Metaverse: Ball's definition, 303–4; innovation of, 309–10; religious experiences in, 309–10
- Metaverse, The* (Ball), 303–4
- Methodists: John Wesley and, 9; Smith on enthusiasm of, 258
- Metropolitan Opera, abuse at, 282
- Michalopoulos, Stelios, on folklore study, 18, 163, 168
- Microsoft, 8, 12
- Middle Ages, 13, 34, 138, 208, 209; decline of magic at end of, 34
- Miessi Sanches, Fabio, on model of demand for church attendance, 259–60, 261
- migration, world's religions and, 50, 61, 317, 319, 330, 337
- millenarian movements, power from perceived success with spirit world, 244
- mind-altering molecules, effects on brain chemistry, 305–6
- Miracle and Morality plays, 69
- mission: religious movements, 202–7; succession of movements and, 203–5; survival of founder, 203–4
- Mithras, sculptures of Persian god, 151
- modernity, importance of religion, 361–62
- modernization: personal religiosity and, 363–64; secularization hypothesis, 357
- modern world, platforms of Christian and Muslim communities, 49–50
- Modi, Narendra, worshipping at Hindu temples, 13
- Mohamed al Amin Mosque, 39
- Mohammed, Prophet, 'Arabo-Swahili' of Wahabi honouring, 214
- monarchy, Hobbes on submission to, 319
- monasteries, 7, 14, 201, 247, 311, 366n27, 389n3
- Moon, Sun-Myung: The Divine Principle, 309; Unification Church, 205; Unification Church founder, 237
- Moqtada-al-Sadr, Iraqis attending Friday prayers, 244
- Moralia*, 370n18
- morality, religious movements and, 292
- moralizing high god (MHG) hypothesis, 386n14
- moralizing supernatural punishment (MSP), 195–96
- moral revolution, idea of, 31
- More, Thomas, Dialogue Concerning Heresies, 191
- Morgan, Catherine, on oracles by authorities, 80–81
- Mori, Masahiro, on notion of the uncanny valley, 328
- Mormonism, 34, 368n20
- Mormon religion, Smith as founder, 34
- mosque(s), 7; American adults as members, 51; Bamum, in Cameroon, 39; as community, 92; globalization in Kumbo, 38, 40–42; Islamic world, 14; Lagos, 31
- movie industry, abuse in, 282

- Muhammad: Hossein as grandson of, 148;
Muslim's belief on, 125
- mujahid, weeping as integral to being a good, 268
- multi-homing, platforms, 218–19
- Murch, Walter, 65; on film editing, 70; In the Blink of an Eye, 65
- Musäus, Johann, folktales, 155
- Muslim-majority countries, death penalty for apostasy or blasphemy, 6
- Muslim organization(s): Chinese government supporting “official”, 14;
providing education and health services,
75; sexual abuse in, 282
- Muslim platform, challenges of modern world, 49–50
- Muslim(s): belief about Muhammad, 125; in China, 28; violence against other Muslims,
255; women wearing the veil, 74
- Myanmar, importance of religion, 359
- Myspace, single-homing on, 218
- Nanjing, Hong Xiuquan, 172
- narcissism, 6
- narrative(s): authority figures in, 166–67; basic plots, 159, 164, 167; common sense and, 157; common structure of compelling, 155–60; defeat and transfiguration, 148, 150–55; definition of, 153; enforcing social norms, 165–67; evolution of our love of, 160–67; generalized trust in, 159–60, 382n30; habitation, 159; heroic, 164;
notions of probability in, 157–58; operation of natural selection, 173–74; Pomio Kivung, 383–84n57; response to fear of death, 170, 384n62; Shi'a Muslim festival of Ashura, Iran, 149; story of David and rebellious son Absalom, 149; storytelling,
162–64; sympathetic joy hypothesis,
161; transcendental religion and, 170; treatment of improbable, 159–60; uses and abuses of, 167–74; word, use of 153
- Nash, E.J.H.: passionate preaching of, 285;
Scripture Union, 285
- nation, destiny of, 33, 368n15
- National Catholic Reporter* (newsletter), 299
- nationalism, 263
- National Network of Lawyers against Spiritual Sales, 237
- National Opinion Research Center, 43, 51, 52
- National Sangha Council, 257
- National Viewers' and Listeners' Association,
Whitehouse as founder, 278
- natural selection: Darwin and Wallace, 185–86; humans evolving to believe in invisible spirits, 193–94; narrative in operation of, 173–74; religious needs compatible with, 64
- Navy Seals for Evangelists, 230
- Nazism, options for people opposed to, 71
- Near East, Axial Age, 31
- Needham, Joseph, on atomistic philosophy, 315
- Nepal, Hinduism, 74
- Netanyahu, Binyamin, religious transformation of educational curricula, 13
- Netherlands, religiosity, 52
- neurophysiology, 193; punishing others stimulating reward centers of brain, 193
- New Dissenters, Church of England's concern over popularity of, 9
- Newman, Cathy, on Channel 4 documentary on Smyth, 280, 398n1
- new religious movements, 364
- Newton, Isaac, on irreligious tone of Lucretius' poem, 314
- New York Times* (newspaper), 128
- Nicene Creed, 132, 153, 154; original, 133
- Niceo-Constantinopolitan Creed, 133
- Nicodemites, 137, 380n31
- Nietzsche, Friedrich: The Birth of Tragedy, 116; secularization diminishing importance of religion, 36
- Nigeria, 12, 123; importance of religion, 359;
worship service at Word of Life Bible Church, 89
- nightclubs, facilitating relationships, 96
- Nike, sneakers, 38

- non-Bayesian reasoning, evolution and, 143–46
- Norenzayan, Ara, on “minimally counterintuitive” narratives, 160
- North America: aim of Christian settlers, 372n50; Christians in, 345–46; importance of religion in, 352, 353; religious proportions, 345, 347; share of Christianity, 46; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350
- Northern Wei dynasty, 246
- not-for-profit organization, 321
- Nothing to Say* (Flynn), 288
- Nso people, fon’s conversion to Islam, 40
- “numinous”: awareness of, 329; sense of, 85
- Oceania, shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350
- Odyssey* (Homer), 166
- Ogilvie, Sheilagh: on behavior in pandemics, 313; on extreme Pietists, 384–85n2
- On the Decline of the Oracles* (Plutarch), 44
- On the Origin of Stories* (Boyd), 162
- “opium of the people”, Marx on religion as, 69, 372n1
- optimism porn, 161, 383n39
- Opus Dei, practice of, 208
- oracles, Morgan on, used by authorities, 80–81
- organizational questions, religions, 16–17
- Origen of Alexandria, Hall on, 81
- Original Sin, 130
- Orthodox Church, 5, 12, 46, 176, 211, 252
- Osiris: cult of, 32; Egyptian god, 26; murder of, by brother Seth, 152, 381n5
- O’Toole, Fintan: on abuse in schools by Christian Brothers in Ireland, 287–88; on compartmentalized thinking, 131; We Don’t Know Ourselves, 278
- Otto, Rudolf, on religiosity, 85
- Ottoman Empire: conquest of Constantinople, 248; Kuran and Rubin on stability in, 249; printing and, 250
- over-imitation: human tendency for, 115–16; instrumental stance, 115; learning by observing others, 112–16; possibility of, 112–13, 377n16; rituals, 177–78; ritual stance, 115
- ownership, pattern of succession across countries, 205–6, 390n21
- Oxfam, abuse at, 282
- Oxford English Dictionary*: consecrational, 320; narrative defined, 153
- Pagels, Elaine, on practical design for Christian communities, 163
- pandemics, Ogilvie on behavior during, 313
- Panin, Amma, on Pentecostalism in Ghana, 77
- Parakramabahu I (Sri Lanka king), 242
- Parkin, David, on division in East African coastal Islam, 214
- Parry-Lord hypothesis, 136
- Parthenon South Frieze, procession of sacrificial bulls, 106
- Pascal, Blaise, wager, 121, 123–24, 126–27
- Pascali, Luigi, on anti-Semitic violence in Europe after Reformation, 254
- passionate enthusiasm, collection plate in church and, 71–72
- Patil Automation Pvt Ltd (PAPL), 111
- pawnbroking business, 201, 389n6
- Pearl* (poem), 227, 391n54
- Pedro II of Aragon (King), Albigensian crusaders against, 270
- Pelagia of Antioch, 274
- Pentecostal churches, 46; Atlanta, 30; Catholic Church competition with, 337; healing ministry of, 67; Kenya, 49; organization of, 210
- Pentecostalist preacher, African music, 50
- Perrault, Charles, folktales, 155
- Perreault, Charles, on content of our beliefs, 144
- personal questions, religions, 16, 82–84
- persuasion competition, religion, 60, 61
- Peter, member of religious community, 92–93

- Pettegree, Andrew: creation of “brand Luther”, 308; on technology of printing, 227
- Pettit, Philip, on economy of esteem, 100
- Pew Research Center, 43, 51, 52, 349, 370n24; religiosity of women and men, 272; religious beliefs, 124, 125; women and religious dress codes, 271
- Pew Research Trust, religion and violent acts, 252
- Philippines, importance of religion, 359
- Philippines Economic Association, International Economic Association, 393n14
- physical abuse: of children and vulnerable adults, 56, 234, 280, 287–88; structural characteristics of organizations facilitating, 290–91
- Pilate, Pontius, Jesus’ crucifixion under, 153
- platforms: activities of religion, 331; as business model, 93; creating communities, 331; creating relationships, 118; differentiated pricing, 96–97; digital, 95; Facebook as confederation of, 208; facilitating relationships, 63–64, 96; flexibility in religious, 58–59; model of religious competition, 231; models of competition, 95–96, 375n19; predigital technology of, 16; relationship-management services, 216; religious ecosystem, 64; religious movements as, 15–16, 17; religious organizations as, 22, 103–4; religious violence and, 253, 256; ritual and religious, 112–16; rough definition of, 95; secular civilization, 332; “single-homing” and “multi-homing”, 218–19; term, 297; theory of, 96; word, 15
- Plato, 306
- Platteau, Jean-Philippe, on absence of central religious authority in Islam, 248
- Plutarch, 80; Advice to Married Couples, 264; On the Decline of the Oracles, 44
- Poland: Catholic Church in, 57; high religiosity state in, 350, 351; Law and Justice Party, 57–58; religiosity in, 58
- political leaders, religious divinity attributed to, 240–47
- political life cycle story, Smith’s, 53–59
- political power: Johnson and Koyama on evolution of, 256–57; taxes as form of, 245–46
- political questions, religions, 17
- political systems: consecrational principles, 320–21; exemption for religion, 321–24; transactional general principles, 318–20
- politicians, turning to religion, 13
- politics: patronage and decline of legitimacy, 256–63; religion and, 12–15, 366n15; seeking or fleeing, 235–40; two-party system, 220
- poll tax, Saleh on, by Muslim rulers for non-Muslim subjects, 245–46, 394n29
- Polti, Georges, Les trente-six situations dramatiques, 382n24
- polyptiques, communication of information, 228
- Pomio Kivung movement: recovery of Aringawuk, 384n65; rules and rituals of, 105, 107; Whitehouse on, 192, 203, 308
- Pongal harvest festival, kolam for, 66
- poor, generosity of the, 1, 305
- Pope: 42, 44, 57, 135, 212, 238, 248, 270, 281, 316, 337–38; appointing bishops, 207, 390n23; authority of, 207
- population growth rates, 48
- Portugal, religiosity in, 351
- Portuguese Inquisition, 336
- Poseidon, god, 82
- post-traumatic stress disorder: flashbulb memories and, 117; risk of, 377–78n34
- power: asymmetry between men and women, 234; on damage to religion, 15; legitimacy of political system, 242; making collective life tolerable, 325; owning or managing a business giving, 320; political, 245; religion and uses of, 233–34; religious, 245; religious movements, 297; Smith’s vision of link between religious and political, 244–45; vulnerability and, 289–94. See also abuse of religious power

- prayer: ethics of urging, for curing sickness, 68; existence of God and, 120, 378n36
- prayer groups, 7
- Presmond, John Peltz, 390n10
- priests, community, 88, 90–92
- “primitive culture”: characterization of foragers as embodying, 144; ideas about role of myths in, 163
- Prince Philip Movement, Yaohanen in Vanuatu, 125
- Principles of Economics* (Marshall), 69
- printing: communication for religious movement, 227–28; communication technology of, 227, 308–9; spread of, 250, 394n45
- printing technology: affecting future of religion, 307–8; art reproductions, 310; Catholic church suspicious of, 311; communication by, 308–9; Protestants escaping control of Catholic Church, 307
- probability, in narratives, 157–58
- profitability, religious movements, 102–3
- propaganda, violent religious extremism, 268–69
- propaganda system, Putin’s, 388n54
- prophecies, 306
- prophets of plague, 219
- prosperity: fertility and, 358–59; religiosity and, 56–57
- “prosperity gospel”, churches preaching, 158
- Protestant Christianity, fidelity of, 17
- Protestant Christian organizations: Chinese government supporting “official”, 14; members of, 212
- Protestant Christians: believing in virgin birth of Jesus, 124; conflict with Catholics in France, 123
- Protestant churches, Haiti, 90, 92
- Protestant ethic, Weber’s account of, 372n2
- Protestant Huguenots, repression of, in France, 10
- Protestantism: Catholic Church in rivalry, 134; competition between Catholicism and, 222–23; conversion between Catholicism and, 254; repression of, 249; Tudor campaign to reverse, 135
- Protestant Reformation, 14, 403n31
- providing for others, Tsimane forager-farmers, 94–95
- psychology, humans evolving to believe in invisible spirits, 193–94
- “pull” factors, recruitment to religious organizations, 292–93
- Purcell, Nicholas: on healing cults, 50; on medieval cult of relics, 223
- Puritans, Elizabethan England, 136
- “push” factors, recruitment to religious organizations, 292–93
- Putin, Vladimir: extolling virtues of Russian Orthodox Church, 12; propaganda in, 388n54; victims of aggression against Ukraine, 252
- Putnam, Robert, on religious denominations in America, 259
- “Pygmalion’s Spectacles” (Weinbaum), 303, 304
- quackery, steering people from medical advice towards, 67
- Quakers, 175; meeting house in London, 31; Society of Friends, 83
- questions: organization, 332–34; personal, 82–84, 330–32; political, 334–35
- Quinn, Michael, religious quest of Joseph Smith’s family, 34
- Quran, 40, 211, 212, 213; 212, Bible; conceptions of trust in, 190, 388n44; distribution of, 309; on honoring obligations, 190; on peacemaking, 214; verses entitling believers to act, 213–14
- Rabbi Israel Ba’al Shem, on not being like mocking outsiders, 105, 109
- Raiber, Eva: on Pentecostalism in Ghana, 77; US churches’ Facebook posts during coronavirus, 261

- Ramakrishna, Vivekananda and, 401n37
- Ramayana, 166
- Rank, Otto, 155
- Raphael, fresco by, 122
- rapture, ritual of the, 105, 107–11
- recruiting killers, violent religious extremism, 268–69
- recruitment: “pull” and “push” factors, 292–93; religious organizations, 292–93
- Rectitudines singularum personarum*, 391n60
- Redpath, James, 106
- Reformation, 14, 61, 222, 247, 249, 262, 310, 336, 337, 340, 366nn15, 27, 372n51, 403n31; anti-Semitic violence in Europe after, 254
- Reitman, Janet, Church of Scientology, 378n10
- relationships: digital platforms facilitating, 95; enabling poor people to know better-off people, 100; platforms creating, 118; platforms facilitating, 96; religious communities shaping, 99–100; understanding choice in, 103
- religion(s): as adaptive complex of traits, 179, 385n9; allegiance to single god, 28; articulated, 184; authoritarianism and, 338–41; believers and skeptics, 29–30; as big business today, 11–12; as businesses, 8; census returns and, 45–47; challenges of futurology, 299–303; competition of, 8, 60–61; corporate transformation of, 59–61; data on secularization and, 343–64; decline of, 42–51; demand side of, 63; demographic competition, 60–61; description of, 44–45; distinction between cults and, 283; economics and, 9–12; embodied, 183, 184; Falwell on, as business with “customers”, 78–79; form of diplomacy, 35; Harari on belief in, vs. corporations, 387n38; ideas and, 313–17; ideological, 184; importance in individual lives, 51–53; importance in North America, 352, 353; information sources, 22; magic and, 34–35; McCleary and Barro on political support for, 258; modernity and importance of, 361–62; organizational questions, 16–17; personal questions, 16; political questions, 17; politicians instrumentalizing, 7, 262; politics and, 12–15, 366n15; power of world’s, 6–7; reported importance of, 353, 354, 355; role of science and, 34; secular authority and, 317–25; secularization diminishing importance of, 36; services of, 68; state of, in world today, 37; state political leaders offering protection to, 11; supply side of, 63; taxation exemption for, 321–24; technology and, 303–13; uses of power, 233–34; war and conquest competition, 60. See also hidden agents and forces in the world
- religion (Zongjiao), term, 361
- Religion and the Decline of Magic* (Thomas), 34, 316
- Religion in the Year 2000* (Greeley), 299–300
- Religion’s Sudden Decline* (Inglehart), 42, 357
- religiosity: activities of religion, 331; American, 262; as bundle of traits, 273–77; Catholic Europe, 350, 351; complex phenomenon, 45; East Asia, 352, 352; gender and, 271–73; Horton on numinous as defining characteristic of, 85–86; “imagistic” and “doctrinal” modes of, 116–18; intelligence and, 274–75; Japan, 235, 237; McCleary and Barro on decline of personal, 363–64; measures of belief and religious participation, 46; men vs. women, 234; modernity and, 312; modernity leading to declining, 302; northwestern Europe, 349–50, 351; Pew Research Center on women and men in, 272; prosperity and, 56–57; public, 258; religious movement and, 257–58; response to unpredictable disasters, 77, 373n25; study of personal, and depression, 101
- religious affiliation: census data tracking, 41; Democrats and Republicans, 260–61

- religious and political power: division of labor, 245; Smith's vision of link, 244–45
- religious beliefs: debates at Vatican, 122; eternal life, 129–30; evolution and non-Bayesian reasoning, 143–46; incompletely worked-out character of, 128–31; influence of religions on, 139–43; leaders influencing, 146; miracles and angelic visitations, 128–29; options for members, 131–39; outsiders finding difficulty with, 146–47; Pascal's wager, 121, 123–24, 126–27; religious membership and, 124–31
- religious choice: agency and, 74–82; balancing advantages and costs, 82–84; distinctive character of, 82–87
- religious community: abuse and, 290–94; authenticity of message, 214–15; members of, 92–93; platforms creating, 331; violence and competition between groups, 253–54; violence by members of, 253
- religious competition: Beirut, 39; movement distinguishing themselves, 220–23; worship style and theology, 220–24
- religious decisions, making, 73
- religious ecosystem(s), 82; platforms in, 64
- religious exceptionalism, United States, 324–25
- religious groups: Africa's proportions, 345, 346; Asia's proportions, 345; Europe's proportions, 345, 346; North America's proportions, 345, 347; reported attendance at religious services, 355, 356; reported belief in God, 355, 356; reported importance of religion, 353, 354, 355; shares of global population, 343–44, 344
- religious human capital, Iannacone pioneering theory of, 374n38
- religious identity, 37
- religious institutions: competing with secular institutions reacting to shocks, 75–76; optimist view of gains from cooperation, 190–91
- religious leaders: as authority figures, 145; charisma and legitimacy of, 290–91; convincing members of truth of beliefs, 146–47; gender gap of, 271–73; gender of, 271, 397n17; motivation among, 103, 376n29; names of saints/biblical figures increasing likeliness of being, 311, 403n29; religion declining in importance, 47; social learning from, 145
- religiously motivated violence, definition of, 252
- religious messages: evaluating the truthfulness of, 330; large language models (LLMs) on difference between true and false, 329–30
- religious movements: activities of, 7–8; advances in artificial intelligence, 329; escaping competitive threat from rivals, 223–24; gender gap in, 271–73; genius in creation of platforms, 18; history of, 8–9; identity prescribed by dress and behavior, 73–74; ideological factors shaping churches' responses, 261, 396n81; members adopting beliefs, 118–19; messages of, 7–8, 224–31, 334; mission of, 202–7, 334; natural life cycle of, 11; parental and individual's religion, 177, 385n6; platform model of, 339; as platforms, 15–16, 17; political life cycle of, 56–57; power, 297; power of, 7; printing as communication for, 227–28; profitability of, 102–3; recruitment targeting men, 273–74; religiosity and, 257–58; rivalry between, 333; sharing know-how between, 229–30; spreading democratic ideas, 260, 395n78; strategies, 216–24; strategies of, 334; structure of, 207–16, 334; succession by family member, 203–4; succession by outsider, 204–5; surviving eclipse of founder, 203, 206, 207; types of services and members, 216–24
- religious names, likeliness of being more religious, 311, 403n29

- religious observance, negligence in, 32–33, 367–68n14
- religious organizations: abuse and, 290–94; abuse striking at legitimacy of, 234; activities of, 33–34; advantages of accountability, 291; benefits of community, 100–101; building community, 101–2; culture of silence, 293; economic theory of, 98; entry fee, 98; exercise of power, 18–19; franchising and, 210, 211; guidelines for reducing risk of abuse, 294–95; hierarchy of structure, 291; interactions with invisible spirits, 33; offering implicit insurance, 76; as platform, 22; privileges of, 14; providing benefits, 74–75; relationships among poor and better-off members, 100; sexual abuse in, 280–82; structural characteristics and abuse, 291–93; success of, 18; thinking of, as platforms, 103–4; tithing system of, 97–98; without revenue or membership reporting obligations, 41
- religious preferences, family and community, 84–85
- religious traditions, loyalties in, 60
- religious violence: intergroup, 255; phenomenon of public life, 251; puzzles of, 252–56
- Rembrandt van Rijn, The Synagogue (painting), 89
- Reme: Christian daughter and, 121, 123; Christian God and Muslim God, 123; contest for loyalty between religions, 123–24; death bed persuasion, 123–24, 127; intelligence of, 123; Muslim son and, 123; wrestling victory, 121
- Republican Party: influence of evangelical Christian organizations over, 14–15; political profile of religion and, 259
- Republicans, Democrats and, 260
- Republic of Ireland, 55
- Ricard, Jean-Pierre (Cardinal), as sexual perpetrator, 281
- Richerson, Peter, on content of our beliefs, 144
- Ridley (Bishop), execution of, 135
- Rig Veda, 211; Hindu veneration of ahimsa (nonviolence), 170
- risk of abuse, guidelines for reducing, 294–95
- ritual(s): baptism, 110–11, 130–31; confidence and, 109–10; consumption of alcohol and drugs, 117, 377n33; cults and, 283; devotees of competing, 107–8; domain of, 104; extreme pain of, 116, 377n30; Ford Motor Company, 225; frequent and repetitive becoming persuasive, 119–20; gendered nature of, 274; gender separations during, 267–68; Haitian Vodou devotees, 106; importance of correct and repeated performance, 110–11; as markers of group membership, 108; marriage, 119; over-imitation, 177–78; Pomio Kivung millenarian movement, 105, 107; procession of sacrificial bulls, 106; range of, in everyday lives, 108–9; rapture, 105, 107–11; religious movements clashing over theology or, 333; religious platforms and, 112–16; rites of passage, 119; traditions of Catholic Church, 109
- ritual stance: metaphysical beliefs following adoption of, 119; over-imitation, 115
- Robarts, Andrew, describing village in Ottoman Bulgaria, 219
- Robinson, Mary, criticism of presidency candidate, 56
- Roman Catholic Church: Latin America, 49; sexual abuse and, 281–82; structure of, 207–9
- Roman Church, Holy Catholic Apostolic and, 55
- Roman Empire: Constantine, 80; sexual arrogance in, 276
- Roman Inquisition, 336
- Roman religion: votum solvit libens merito, 79; Wilson on world of, 79–80
- Roman society, Hopkins on marrying off, 276

- rosaries, 5
- Rotary Club, 104
- Roy, Olivier, "The Crisis of Religious Legitimacy in Iran", 339
- Royal Ballet, abuse at, 282
- Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, 131
- Rubenstein, Jay, on recruits for First Crusade, 270
- Rubin, Jared, on stability in Ottoman Empire, 249
- Ruskin, John : on acting as if Bible were true, 127; impact of new discoveries on science, 125
- Russia, Ukraine and, 5
- Russian National Guard, 5
- Russian Orthodox Church, 5; Putin extolling virtues of, 12; Skoptsy sect from, 176–77
- sacrifices, temple festival, 266–67
- sacrificial bulls, procession of, 106
- Sahlins, Marshall: gods repairing canoe of Tikopia people, 30; "immanent" and "transcendental" religion, 31; on importance of divine power, 243–44
- Saint Augustine, City of God, 172
- Saint Mark, Gospel, 168–69
- Saint Matthew, Gospel of, 190
- Saint Paul: Christian Church, 205; Christian community at Corinth, 93–94; Christianity, 202
- Saint Paul's Cathedral, 311
- Saint Peter, Christianity, 202
- Saivites and Vaishnavites, intergroup violence of, 255
- Saleh, Mohamed, on poll tax by Muslim rulers on non-Muslim subjects, 245–46, 394n29
- Salem witch trials, Mather of, 44
- Salomé, sculpture of King Herod and, 279
- Salon Noir, cave images, 304–5
- Samuelson, Paul, Economics, 69
- Sanderson, Stephen, emergence of social hierarchy, 195
- Santa Claus, 42
- Sapienza, Paola, individual religiosity, 190
- Satan, man possessed by, 192
- Savile, Jimmy, grooming and abusing children, 293–94
- Scandinavia, religiosity, 52
- Scheidel, Walter: on breakdown of Roman Empire, 249; on imperial reconstruction in late sixth-century China, 247
- Scheve, Kenneth, on preferences for social insurance, 77
- science: Augustinian formula of, 403n26; idea of, 313, 316–17; religion and scientific enquiry, 28–29; role of religion and, 34; technology and, 312–13
- scientific knowledge, importance of, 317, 404n46
- scientific rationalism, 263
- scientific world view, unreliability of in eyes of some believers, 29
- Scripture Union: Fletcher and, 285; John Smyth Independent Case Review, 398n2; Nash and, 285
- Seabright, Edmond, on opium metaphor for religion, 372n1
- Seattle (Chief), 25
- Second Lateran Council, Pope Innocent II, 248
- secrecy: culture of, 287–89, 294. See also abuse of religious power
- secular atheism, 343
- secular authority, religion and, 317–25
- secular civilization, decline of religion and, 332
- secular institutions: abuse in, 293–94; competing with religious institutions reacting to shocks, 75–76; culture of silence and secrecy, 293–94; reassuring character of, 190; sexual abuse in, 282
- secularization: data on religion and, 343–64; modernity leading to declining religiosity, 302; modernization and, 357; on Weber's discussion of, 369n29; phenomenon, 297; phenomenon of, 36; possible causes of, 407n15; on Weber's discussion of, 369n29; Weber's work, 36

- secularization hypothesis, 46–47, 56, 57, 357, 358
- secularization theory, 363, 407n21
- Secular Landscape, The* (McCaffree), 43
- secular organizations, changing, 336
- secular shopping, church attendance and, 75
- Seneca, on human beings in societies, 94
- Serra, Richard, on being the product, 93
- Seven Basic Plots, The* (Booker), 156
- Seventh Day Adventists, 239
- sexual abuse: associating experience with committing abuse in adulthood, 289, 401n28; blame accusations for, 282, 399n13; children and vulnerable adults, 234; culture and, 282–83; religions and cults, 283; religious movements launching enquiries, 282, 399n8; religious organizations, 280–82; role of cultures of repression or permissiveness, 282, 399–400n14; secular institutions, 282; victims of, 282. See also abuse of religious power
- sexuality, 83, 157, 270, 278, 281, 292–93, 300, 402n9; representation in literature and film, 161, 383n39
- sexual morality, Church imposing code of restrictive, 275–76
- sexual porn industry, worldwide revenues of, 383n39
- Shakers, 175–77; community of, 176
- Shakespeare, William, 19; King Lear and daughter Cordelia, 241
- Shaking Quakers, 175
- shamanism, 138; ecstatic experiences of, 137–38; Gardner on men exerting leadership in a crisis, 380n34; respect for shaman and tradition, 138; rituals, 137
- shamans, treating physical ailments, 36
- Shang dynasty, Wu's overthrow of, 246
- Shi'a Islam, Iranian revolution, 339
- Shi'a Muslim festival, Ashura, Iran, 149
- Shi'ism, 151
- Shinto temple, collective space for groups, 217
- Shiva (Hindu god), dancing form Nataraja, 151
- shocks, vulnerability of people to unforeseen, 75–76
- Shofia, Naila, on Muslim women wearing the veil, 74
- Shrivastava, Anand, on Muslim desecration of Hindu temples, 255
- Siedentop, Larry, on shaping philosophy of liberalism, 316
- silence: culture of, 287–89, 293–94; diverse textures of, 367n2; ending, for reducing abuse risk, 294, 295. See also abuse of religious power
- Silicon Valley, Chen on Buddhism resonating for tech entrepreneurs, 213
- Siloam, pool of, Jerusalem, 223
- Sima Qian, astrologer royal in China, 246
- Simpson's paradox: on membership of world's religious groups, 344–45; phenomenon, 344
- simulation hypotheses, 160
- Singh, Manvir, sympathetic joy hypothesis, 161
- single-homing, platforms, 218–19
- skeptics, believers and, 29–30
- Skopty, sect from Russian Orthodox Church, 176–77
- slavery, Hobbes on, 318–19
- slaves, Roman society and, 275–76
- Slavonic Dances, Dvorak's, 40
- Smart Prayer Beads, Taiwanese company Acer's, 111
- Smith, Adam, 2, 70; alliances between political and religious leaders, 235; competition of religious organizations, 71, 233; on freedom from competitive pressure, 103; intertwining of political and religious leadership, 262–63; jealousy of politicians of religious leaders' power, 243; on peaceful competition, 240, 392–93n13; political life cycle story, 53–59; on political power, 15, 233; on political support for religious leaders, 256, 257; political support for religious movement, 258; on power of other-worldly message, 9–11, 365n10; on

- Smith, Adam (continued) religion as big politics, 12; on religious capture of political power, 312; The Theory of Moral Sentiments, 240; vision of link between political and religious power, 244–45; The Wealth of Nations, 68, 374n35
- Smith, John, notion of Iwerne camps as cult, 283
- Smith, Joseph: founder of Mormon religion, 34; murder of, 206
- Smith and the Devil*, The (folktale), 166
- Smyth, John: abuse remaining unchecked, 283; documentary on abuse by, 278, 280; family expelled from Plymouth Brethren, 401n28; as fearless campaigner for pure vision, 278; grooming network of camps, 283–86; Iwerne camps and, 278, 280–87; offering to be spiritual adviser to boys and young men, 284; secret between victims and, 288; silence enabling complicity, 288
- Smythe, John, Irish minister challenging Methodist preacher, 9
- social bonding, flashbulb memories and, 117
- social discipline, 181, 386n14
- social institutions, safety net of, 76
- social learning, human adaptation, 145, 381n53
- social media, platforms, 97
- social organization, technological innovations, 307
- social spending, expansion in America, 77
- Société des missions évangéliques de Paris, postcard of, 39
- societies: narratives of past, 166; norms for, 165; political human life of human, 318–19
- Society of Friends, 83
- Society of Jesus, practice of, 208
- sociologists, 69, 70, 116, 200, 260, 361–63
- Solomon Islands, Tikopia people, 30
- Sosis, Richard, on utopian communes, 182
- South Africa, 12; Smyth in, 278
- South and Southeast Asia, Buddhism, Jainism, and Hinduism, 233
- South Asia, Hinduism, 74
- South Korea, medium religiosity state, 352, 352
- Soviet communism, actions of opponents of, 71
- Spain: importance of religion, 46, 361; low religiosity stable state, 350, 351; religiosity, 53; Roman Catholicism, 54; secularization hypothesis, 56
- Spanish Inquisition, 336
- Spencer, Stephen, on lachrymose crusader, 270
- Sperber, Dan: on Dorzé community, 178–79; on epistemic vigilance, 145
- “spin dictators”, Guriev and Treisman on, 338
- spirits, invisible, 25, 27–30
- Spiritual Exercises* (Ignatius of Loyola), 120
- spiritual vision, components of, 64
- Squicciarini, Mara, on technical education in primary schools in France, 312
- Stalin, Joseph, 48
- Stalin’s Terror, 176
- Stanley, Brian, Christianity in the Twentieth Century, 38
- Stark, Rodney: analyzing religious decisions, 70; on capacity of religion to innovate, 264; on Catholic emigration to U.S., 109; on systematic evidence on religion, 362
- Stasavage, David, on preferences for social insurance, 77
- Sterelny, Kim: on belief in powerful hidden agents or forces, 178–81; on complexity of human social life, 184; on embodied religion, 183–84; on human beings’ attitudes to trust, 191; on refusal to admit ignorance, 387n27; religious beliefs and phobias, 379n18; transmission of religion, 181–82; two-phase evolutionary process by, 185
- Steve, member of religious community, 92
- storytelling: Agta hunter-gatherer communities in Philippines, 167; narratives, 162–64
- strategies: deciding on offering services and targeting members, 216–24; distinguishing religious movements from others, 220–23; messages as, 219–20; recruiting members, 219–20

- Strathern, Alan: on Buddhist writers (14th-century Japan) lamenting ignorance of people, 226; on immanent religions, 138; on Indic practices of yoga and meditation, 114; interactions of religions in world, 31; on millenarian movements, 244; on purification in Christianity and Islam, 171–72; on rulers imposing religious identity on population, 60, 372n51
- Stroebel, Johannes, study examining social network ties, 100
- Stuart-Glennie, John, idea of “moral revolution”, 31
- Sufi Islam, 171
- Sufism, 171
- Sultan Ahmed III, authorizing printing in Arabic, 249
- Sultan Mehmed II, prestige of, 248
- Sumption, Jonathan, on medieval Church in Europe helping pilgrims travel to destinations, 217
- Sundays, relaxing laws on retail activity on, 75
- supply side, religion, 63
- surveys, religious activity, 41
- suspending ordinary disbelief, talent for, 189
- Sweden, low religiosity stable state of, 349, 351
- symbolism, Ford Motor Company, 225
- sympathetic joy hypothesis, Singh’s, 161
- synagogue, 7; activities and shared tradition, 34; American adults as members, 51; as community, 92; Jerusalem, 31
- Synagogue, The* (Rembrandt), 89
- synchronization, movements in, with actions of others, 114–15
- Syriac Orthodox Church, John of Ephesus and, 211
- Taiping rebellion (1850–1864), 172–73, 244
- Taksim mosque, Erdogan leading prayer at newly opened, 236
- Tamil Nadu state, India, homage to Kali, 264, 266–67
- Tanzania, Hadza of, 34
- Taoims, 80, 111; emergence of, 195; ideology of, 246
- Target, 59; grocery store displacement, 59
- taxation: charity tax law, 325; exemption for religion, 321–24; Zuisim movement and, 322
- technology: France and technical education in primary school, 312; innovations by inventors, 305–6; innovations for social organization, 307; large language models (LLMs), 326–30; magic as form of, 34–35; religion and, 303–13; science and, 312–13
- temple(s), 7, 16, 26, 31, 44, 80, 81, 91, 98, 138, 152, 169, 197–200, 206, 211, 212–13, 223, 250, 266; Buddhist, 14; as community, 92; Hindu, 13, 31; Modi worshiping at, 13
- temple festivals, castes and, 266
- Temple of Al-Lat in Palmyra, destruction of, 250
- Temple Rock, cult of, 223
- Temple Society, 200, 201; Wood on notion of, 368n17
- Terre Cabade cemetery, occupant of miracle working reputation, 202–3
- Thackeray, William Makepeace, 121
- Thailand: importance of religion, 359; Kitiarsa on harmonious coexistence of deities, 212–13
- theaters: Jesuit order exploring potential, 70; threat to church in Elizabethan England, 69–70
- theologies, incompatibility between rival, 23
- Theory of Moral Sentiments, The* (Smith), 240, 392–93n13
- Thirty Years’ War, 10, 135
- Thomas, Keith: on magic, 316–17; on religion and magic, 34
- Thorn, John, on Smyth’s departure, 400n26
- Tibetan Buddhists, China, 361
- Ticchi, Davide, on measures of personal religiosity, 311
- Ticku, Rohit, on Muslim desecration of Hindu temples, 255
- Tilapia people, Solomon Islands, 30

- Tirole, Jean, on poll tax by Muslim rulers on non-Muslim subjects, 245–46
- tithing system, religious organizations, 97–98
- Torah justice system, King David, 12
- transactional principles, political systems, 318–20
- transcendentalist, term, 367n7
- transcendental religion(s), 21–22, 244; emergence of, 195; first glimmerings of, 26; immanent and, 30–37; local tradition and, 226; narratives, 170; political success of millenarian movements, 244; religious platforms by, 172; Turchin on separate invention of, 195–96
- transubstantiation, belief in, 141
- Treisman, Daniel, on spin dictators, 338
- Trinity College Dublin, 131
- Trump, Donald, praying with evangelical pastors, 13
- Trump campaign, faith leaders praying for, 236
- Trunchovitsa, Robarts describing, 219
- Tsimane forager-farmers: depression and anxiety of, 94–95; longitudinal study of, 386n17
- Tuam Children's Home, 131
- Tudor, Mary, campaign to reverse Protestantism, 135
- Tunstall, Cuthbert, on printing; on printing, 307
- turbulence, 362
- Turchin, Peter, on invention of transcendental religion, 195–96
- Turkey, Erdogan's personal religiosity as key component of political strategy, 12–13
- Turner, Victor, contrasts in ritual style, 116
- Turpin, Hugh, responses of Irish citizens, 56
- Twitter, 95
- Ucerler, Antoni, on founding of Jesuit order, 228–29
- Ukraine: destiny of Russian Orthodoxy supporting invasion of, 12; increased deaths in war, 253; invasion by Putin, 173; Russia and, 5; victims of Putin's aggression in, 252
- Ukrainian Orthodox Church, 5
- uncanny valley, notion of the, 328
- Unification Church: Abe's grandfather's role in bringing to Japan, 237; Abe's gunman and, 235; founding and succession of, 205; growth model of, 237–38
- United Kingdom: importance of religion, 46; importance of religion in lives, 51; religiosity, 53, 59; Smyth, John and Iwerne camps, 278, 280–87
- United Nations, abuse at, 282
- United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing, 175
- United States: big business of religion in, 11–12; decline in religious beliefs, 43; history of religion in, 34; importance of religion, 46; importance of religion in lives, 51; membership decline in churches, 28; post-Columbian settlers fleeing religious persecution, 323; religiosity, 52; religiosity in, 59; religious demographics of Supreme Court, 336, 405n7; religious exceptionalism in, 324–25; Supreme Court, 336; survey participants, 360; traditions and emigration of Catholics to, 109
- University College Dublin, 131
- University of Kyoto, 161
- University of Tokyo, 328
- untouchables, Dalit castes, 266
- Urban II (Pope), in favor of Crusade, 270
- urbanization, world's religions and, 61
- US Constitution, First Amendment of, 324
- Uttar Pradesh, Hindu temple in, 31
- van Rhijn, Carine, on Carolingian dynasty, 225–26
- Varieties of Religious Experience* (James), 86
- Vatican, 133; Council of Nicaea, 122
- veil wearing, Muslim women, 74

- Venkatesh, Sudhir Alladi, on description of Maquis Park, 91–92
- Venus Cloacina, Roman religion, 79
- Vermilion Bird, constellation of, 246
- Veyne, Paul, Did the Greeks Believe in Their Myths?, 141
- vinaya*, Buddhist teachings and ecclesiastical laws, 213
- Vindigni, Andrea, on measures of personal religiosity, 311
- violence: on appeal to greater good from killing, 269, 396n9; Becker and Pascali on anti-Semitic, in Europe after Reformation, 254; males on adaptive advantage from, 269, 396n6; motivation analysis of individual fighters, 269, 397n11; Pakistani Taliban and natural disaster relief, 269, 396n10; propaganda of religious extremism, 268–69; puzzles of religious, 252–56; recruiting killers, 269; religious hostility and, 335; thrill of the idea of inflicting, 268, 396n5. See also Christianity, violence in; Hinduism, violence in; Islam, violence in
- Virgin Mary, icon of, 5
- virtual reality: as complement to normal life, 306–7; digital, 310; dreaming and, 304; everyday life and, 303
- Visigoths, 172
- Vivekananda, biography of, 401n37
- Vodou: Catholic Church and, 90; Dalmas describing secret ceremony of, 107; Haiti's President Aristide recognizing religion, 90; magic and, 90; mediation role of, 91; priest discussing his career plans, 88, 90; rural Haiti, 88; Venkatesh on description of Maquis Park, 91–92
- Voltaire, 48; on intolerance of religion, 10, 366n14
- von Arnim, Achim, folktales, 155
- von Goethe, Johann Wolfgang, 382n24
- voting, theory of expressive, 319, 404n49
- votum solvit libens merito*, Roman religion, 79
- vulnerability: people and unforeseen shocks, 75–76; power and, 289–94
- vulnerable: abuse of, 67; autonomy of, 67–74; feeling special and, 67–68
- vulnerable adults, physical and sexual abuse of, 234
- Wahabism, 171
- Wales, decline in Christianity, 43
- Wallace, Alfred Russell, natural selection by Darwin and, 185–86
- Wall Street Journal* (newspaper), 43
- Walmart, 59; grocery store displacement, 59; official statistics of, 41; shopping habits, 60
- Walters, Holly, on Smart Prayer Beads, 111
- Wang, Erik, on China's governance, 247
- Wang, Hui, on economic growth in China and Protestant missionary work, 312
- waqf*, Islamic tradition of, 389n3
- war and conquest competition, religion, 60
- warfare, theater of religious persuasion, 6
- Washington Times* (newspaper), 237
- Watts, Alan: on virtue of te, 111; on Zen Buddhism, 23
- Wealth of Nations, The* (Smith), 2, 9, 10, 54, 68, 374n35
- Weber, Max, 69; on disenchantment of world, 36, 357; idea of “moral revolution”, 31; notion of charismatic legitimation of political system, 242; on origins of secularization, 362; secularization hypothesis, 46–47; sense of meaning, 302
- WeChat, 83; Chinese platform, 218–19
- We Don't Know Ourselves* (O'Toole), 131, 278
- weeping: crusaders, 270, 273; being good mujahid, 268; jihadi, 269; jihadis, 273; mocking of, on social media, 268, 396n4
- Weinbaum, Stanley G., “Pygmalion's Spectacles”, 303, 304
- Welby, Justin: Church of England and, 286; claims against John Smyth, 398n3; inaction of, on Smyth's proclivities, 280

- Wesley, John, Methodists by, 9
- Western Europe: importance of religion, 46; importance of religion in lives, 51;
religiosity, 53, 59
- Whitehouse, Harvey: describing founder of splinter group, 192; explanations for over-imitation, 115; on founders of splinter group from Pomio Kivung cult,
203; general theory of rituals, 108–10; “imagistic” and “doctrinal” modes of religiosity, 116–18; on Pomio Kivung cult, 192; on Pomio Kivung movement, 308;
on religion, 368n16; rules and rituals of Pomio Kivung millenarian movement,
105, 107
- Whitehouse, Mary, National Viewers’ and Listeners’ Association, 278
- white witch, term, 35
- Why can the dead do such great things?*
(Bartlett), 172, 384n68
- Wikipedia*: “Decline of Christianity in the Western World”, 42; Guatemalan civil war, 238, 392n9; legal proceedings alleging abuse in Catholic church, 281;
Metaverse description, 303
- Wilde, Oscar: Beardsley’s illustration of Salome, 279; *The Importance of Being
Ernest*, 150
- William, Pastor, Grace and, 3–4, 9
- William of Malmesbury, First Crusade and, 270
- Wilson, Andrew: citing Augustine of Hippo, 374n35; on world of Roman religion,
79–80
- Wilson, Catherine, on scientific subjects in Lucretius’ poem, 314
- Wilson, David Sloan, on cultural communities, 163
- Wilson, Peter, on Protestantism in Sweden, 135
- Winchester College, Smyth at, 280
- witchcraft: magic and, 35; practice for societies, 368n26
- witchcraft trials, Briggs on history of, 251–52
- Woessmann, Ludger, on income and church attendance, 364
- Wolsey, Cardinal, on printing, 307
- Wood, Ian: on founding of monasteries, 389n3; on idea of temple society, 200;
on notion of temple society, 368n17
- Woodhead, Linda, on decline of religious institutions, 363
- Word of Life Bible Church, worship service at, 89
- World of a Tiny Insect, The* (Daye), 148
- world population(s): demography in calculating shares of Christianity and Islam, 348–49, 349; shares by major religious group, 343–44, 344; shares of Christian denominations in, 349, 350
- World Religion Database (WRD), 47, 343,
349, 370n24
- world’s religions: demography shaping relative growth, 348; power of, 6–7
- World Values Survey (WVS), 51, 52, 53, 343, 349, 352, 357–63; religiosity of Japanese,
235; respondents in Iran, 339–40
- worship service, Word of Life Bible Church, 89
- Wright, Robert: on law of religious tolerance, 191, 388n49; on rise of monotheistic religions, 388–89n58
- Wu (King), Zhou dynasty, 246
- Xenophon’s Cyropaedia, 374n35
- Xiang, Chong, on decentralized governance structures, 209
- Xi Jinping, 361; reconstruction of Buddhist temples, 13
- Xygalatas, Dimitris, on grip of religious and state institutions, 364
- Yahweh, global god, 50
- Yali, styling self as King of New Guinea, 244
- Yan, Se, on economic growth in China and Protestant missionary work, 312

- Yaohnanen in Vanuatu, Prince Philip Movement in, 125
- Yazid, offering safe conduct to Hossein, 148
- Yemen, 12
- yoga and meditation, Strathern on Indic practices of, 114
- yoga movements, sexual abuse in, 282
- Young, Brigham, succession of Church of Latter-Day Saints, 206
- Yunnan Province, China, dilapidated temple, 98
- zandaqa*: accusation of, 213; term, 213
- Zen Buddhism, 111, 120; Watts on, 23
- Zeus, global god, 50
- Zhang, Anwen, study of personal religiosity and depression, 101
- Zhang, Chunni, on applying survey questions in China, 361
- Zhang, Xiaoming, on China's governance, 247
- Zheng He (Admiral), ban on seafaring missions after last voyage of, 315
- Zhou dynasty, King Wu of, 246
- Zimbabwe, 12; importance of religion, 359; Smith in, 278, 280
- Zingales, Luigi, individual religiosity, 190
- Zolotov, Viktor (General), 5
- Zoroastrianism, 80; emergence of, 195; formalization and propagation of, 250–51
- Zuism, Icelandic movement, 322